

American Tank Forces Holding Line in Tunisia

Rommel's Drive Slackens Off to Mere Skirmishing

French Troops Capture 45 Germans in Local Attack

By DANIEL DE LUCE
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Feb. 19 (AP)—American armored forces stabilized their new line on the Tunisian mountains near the Algerian frontier today while the violent drive by Marshal Erwin Rommel that had carried him more than sixty miles slackened off to mere skirmishing.

The announced withdrawal of French troops from Pichon, about forty miles north of the Faid Pass area where Rommel began his thrust on Sunday, indicated that the central section of the Allied front was being moved back to stronger defensive positions on the west side of the Ousselet valley. This would deprive Rommel of opportunity for a quick thrust northward behind the Allied forward units.

The new line runs along mountains as high as 4,000 feet which flank the pass leading from Feriana to Tebessa, the latter in Algeria.

French in Action

The Allied communiqué reported no action of consequence during the day. The French high command, speaking of an action well to the north of the Feriana area, announced that French Moroccan troops southwest of Pont Du Fahs had taken forty-five Axis prisoners in a local attack and that in another and unspecified Tunisian sector British and French troops had "inflicted serious losses on the enemy and captured prisoners and arms."

Additional information from the front indicated that earlier estimates of American equipment losses in the heavy fighting now ended might be reduced as much as a third. For example, it developed that one unit of American tanks previously believed lost had in fact fought its way back.

Rommel Halts Drive

Rommel was assumed to have suspended his drive toward the Algerian plateau in part because of the threat being offered by the British Eighth army of General Sir Bernard Montgomery which, moving from southeastern Tunisia, was disclosed during the day to have captured Fomm Tatahouine on the Matmata range along the southeastern flank of the Mareth line.

Dispatches from Cairo indicated that this point had fallen without much fighting. Thirty miles to north, however, more enemy resistance was being encountered; Montgomery's artillery batteries were exchanging fire with the Germans in the Mendienne outpost of the Mareth line. It was believed that a heavy attack on Rommel was coming very soon.

The fighting French announced in London that an entire fighting French division which had been with Montgomery's British Eighth army had gone under the command of General Eisenhower, presumably (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Bendix Corporation Gets Service Star

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—The army-navy production white star has been awarded to the Bendix radio division of Bendix Aviation Corporation, Hugh Benet, general manager, announced today.

The white star award is a supplement to the army-navy "E" award presented to the corporation last August 10.

Benet made the announcement after receiving a letter confirming the award from Robert P. Patterson, under secretary of war.

Patterson called the white star a "symbol of appreciation from our armed forces."

Baldwin Says Dept. of Agriculture Hurts Farmers More Than All Else

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Suspension for the war's duration of all crop production and marketing restrictions under the Triple A was proposed in the House today by Rep. Baldwin (D-Md.), a large truck farmer, but the proposal was blocked by a point of order.

Rep. Baldwin, described himself as one of the largest truck farmers in Maryland, proposed the suspension as a substitute for a pending bill to amend the Agricultural Administration Act to eliminate all restrictions on peanut production.

Chairman Fulmer (D-SC) of the Agriculture committee made the point of order. It was sustained by the temporary presiding officer, Rep. Magnuson (D-Wash.), who held the substitute went far beyond the scope of the pending bill.

Baldwin, saying increased food production is needed for war purposes, shouted, amid applause: "I know what the practical farmers are thinking today. With all due respect, the activities of the department of agriculture in the last few years have done more to hurt the farmer than anything else that has been done."

He said the department was originally created as a research agency and to control crop diseases and the like, but had become a bureau bent on "regimenting the farmers of the nation."

"The farmers don't want it," he continued. "The farmers constitute the largest single group in this country and when you put that large group under the license of a bureau you don't have a freedom of action but regimentation."

Move To Prevent Buying of Liquor By Minors Fails

House Overrides Favorable Committee Report by Vote of 71 to 32

By JOHN F. CHANDLER

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 19 (AP)—A bill placing more responsibility upon minors seeking to purchase liquor touched off a lengthy and heated floor debate in the House today, some delegates openly interpreting the outburst as an expression of dissatisfaction against the administration's legislative policies.

The bill, which would provide a fine of up to $100 for minors convicted of falsifying their age to purchase intoxicants, had been reported favorably to the floor by a 9-0 vote of the House Temperance committee.

Majority Leader John S. White (D-Prince George's) moved that the House reject the committee report, asserting that "the tavern keepers are riding pell mell back to prohibition on this sort of a bill."

Report Overruled

Proponents of the bill, forcing the first full roll call of the House in this session, saw the committee report overruled by a 71 to 32 vote.

Delegate Bertram L. Boone II who had sponsored the bill immediately challenged the floor leader. But his effort to gain the floor was lost.

During the stormy interlude, Speaker Thomas E. Conlon was forced to call for a House vote, which upheld White's right to continue speaking.

When the floor leader finished, Boone said his bill "was conceived in good faith, and is not being opposed in good faith."

"I will admit that the majority leader made a good speech, and will make many more good speeches during this session."

"But, he's going to be knocked down as often as he is supported, and we may as well spend a few minutes more now to settle this question," Boone said.

"If the floor leader wants a fight, he will get it."

Delegate Frank J. Hirt, Temperance committee chairman, interjected that White had given a "misrepresenting explanation" of the bills, and that "the tavern keeper will get it."

German U-Boat Base and Yards Heavily Bombed

Block-Busters Do Great Damage to Port of Wilhelmshaven

LONDON, Feb. 19 (AP)—The RAF delivered a heavy cargo of block-busters on the Wilhelmshaven U-boat base and shipyards last night while other British squadrons shot up shipping along the Dutch and French coasts and inland communications across France and Belgium.

The Wilhelmshaven raid was a repeat performance of the heavy assault a week earlier and the seventy-second attack of the war on the sprawling port which has produced a great number of Atlantic raiders.

Good weather favored the attack, officially designated as a heavy one in which four bombers were lost. The Germans conceded casualties were suffered "particularly in the surrounding localities" and claimed nine planes were downed.

Fast, cannon-carrying fighters and fighter-bombers, including the new Typhoons, Beaufighters and Whirlwinds, were among the strong intruder squadrons that bombed railways and shipping in the Dunkerque area and hit a convoy between Calais and Cap Gris Nez, where results were difficult to observe.

Coastal command planes piloted by a Dutch naval squadron attacked a convoy off Holland through intense anti-aircraft fire, scoring a hit on the stern of one ship which (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

World's Largest Oil Pipeline Is Aiding War Effort

Starts Providing Fuel To Supply Needs of Atlantic Coast

NORRIS CITY, Ill., Feb. 19 (AP)—A train of tank cars pulled out tonight for the Atlantic seaboard with the first oil brought from Texas through "Big Inch," the world's largest oil pipeline.

Ceremonies were held to commemorate the record-breaking job of building the twenty-four-inch, 531-mile line in less than six months, crossing eight major rivers and numerous small streams. Construction was authorized because the war caused critical oil shortages on the east coast.

But Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum administrator for war, asserted the line was "a tool for the quickest possible defeat of our enemies rather than a channel for supplying any but the most essential needs of civilian consumption."

Russians Drive All Nazis from Key Rail Line

Also Clear Kursk-Kharkov Highway of the Last German

Capture Oboyan and Advance toward Dnieper River

LONDON, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Red Army has cleared the last German soldier from the Kursk-Kharkov railroad and highway with the seizure of Oboyan, and has pushed on twenty-five miles due west of Kharkov in its continuing sweep toward the Dnieper river, a special Moscow communiqué recorded by the Soviet monitor said tonight.

Oboyan, thirty-five miles south of Kursk, was surrounded and its Nazi garrison either wiped out or taken prisoner. Thus "the Kursk-Kharkov railway and highroad have been completely cleared of the enemy," the communiqué said.

Lubotin, twenty-five miles west of Kharkov, and Merefa, fifteen miles southwest of Kharkov, also fell to the Russians as they cleaned out an entire north-south series of springboards to facilitate their push toward the Dnieper river, considered the next best German defensive line in southern Russia.

Oboyan By-Passed

Oboyan had been by-passed by Russian units driving to the west. One Soviet column already had captured Lgov, forty miles west of Kursk, and fifty miles northwest of Oboyan. Another Red army group had taken Gralvoron, sixty miles southwest of Oboyan. A spur railway connects the highroad town of Oboyan with the Kursk-Kharkov main line eighteen miles to the east.

The capture of Lubotin put the Russian army only fifty-five miles from Poltava, another German base on the Loozava-Kiev railway across the Ukraine. Lubotin also is a junction for the line running to Sumy and Konotop to the north-west.

The numerous Soviet columns operating west of Kursk and Kharkov now are in a position to spread out to the northwest and southwest over (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Naval Officers Deny Guilt in Sabotage Case

Capt. Newton H. White Is Witness at Hearing for Thomas

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—A navy officer denied today that naval authorities were "derelict in their duties" in assigning Harvey Lee Thomas, 21-year-old accused saboteur, to inspection duties on $400,000 Glenn L. Martin patrol bombers.

Thomas, a pre-medical student, entered a plea of innocent today at a hearing before United States Commissioner James K. Cullen on charges he had committed 150 acts of sabotage on sixty-four navy planes.

At a previous hearing Tuesday, Commissioner Cullen expressed surprise that the navy had employed a 21-year-old student to inspect the electrical equipment on the planes.

At today's hearing, Capt. Newton H. White, in charge of naval aircraft inspection at Martin's said: "In the commissioner's statement quoted in the papers, there was a strong inference that the naval authorities were derelict in their duties in picking an inexperienced pre-medical student to inspect a $400,000 airplane. I should like to assure the commissioner that this is not the case."

Small Force of Americans Fool Nazis in Tunisia for Two Months

By LEWIS HAWKINS

LONDON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Col. Edeon Raff disclosed today that German gains this week in Central Tunisia were made in part of an area of 10,000 square miles which a handful of American soldiers and some Allied units had held for more than two months by sheer dash and bluff instead of numbers.

Head of the United States parachute formation which made a 1,500-mile flight from England to the Oran area to participate in the AEP occupation of French North Africa Nov. 8, Colonel Raff has just returned to London.

Stock Up Today On Canned Goods, Government Says

Your Last Chance in Advance of Rationing, Notice Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Housewives, confronted by a twin freeze, have their last chance tomorrow to stock up on canned fruits and vegetables in advance of rationing. Officials said today that stocking up is approved so long as it stays within reasonable family needs.

A government "freeze" will take these canned goods off the grocery shelves for one week after Saturday midnight in preparation for the start of point rationing March 1.

At the same time a freeze of nature was reported by the Agriculture department today to have damaged severely the Florida winter crops of fresh vegetables counted upon heavily to supplement the rationed canned supplies.

Point Values Sunday

Officials said the situation was not serious enough, however, to interfere with the canned goods rationing, and they proceeded with the program. The point values of the rationed articles will be announced Sunday and published in the Monday morning newspapers. The public will register for the new ration books starting Monday.

The Saturday midnight sales suspension will affect all canned and frozen fruits and vegetables, dried fruits, canned baby foods and canned soups.

In the following eight days, people are expected to live on their accumulated stocks of these foods plus the unrationed foods which will remain on sale, including fresh fruits and vegetables, cereals, bread, milk and meat. Meat is to be rationed later but for the present may be sold without restriction.

The "price lists" of point values which will be assigned each type of can under the forthcoming canned goods rationing are being kept secret until sales stop. Premature public knowledge of these values would enable hoarders to stock up on the foods which will cost the most points.

How It Will Work

O'CONOR MAY BE GIVEN RIGHT TO DRAFT CITIZENS FOR GUARD

Administration Bill Backed by Reckord, Mohr and Petroff Introduced by Lindsay

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 19 (AP)—A bill introduced in the state Senate by the administration today would permit the government to draft male citizens of any age into the state guard.

The bill was introduced in the upper chamber by Sen. James J. Lindsay (D-Baltimore), the majority floor leader, but Lindsay promptly disclaimed any interest in it, declaring he had offered the bill at the request of the administration without being familiar with its provisions.

The draft provision was contained in a single sentence deep in the text of the bill, which technically would substitute a number of sections of the state militia law.

Member Not Limited

The bill would not limit the number of men which the governor might designate to serve in the guard.

The draft provision was contained in this sentence of the bill: "The governor is authorized and directed, under such regulations as he deems proper, to order such number of the male citizens of the state, without regard to age, to serve in the state guard or the reserve militia (minute men), and he may, by regulations, prescribe the duties to be performed by each."

Deputy Attorney General Hall, Hammond, who prepared the bill, said it contained the recommendations of three men: Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, Third Service Command head; Brig. Gen. Dwight H. Mohr, commander of the state (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Gandhi Growing Weaker, Doctors In India Assert

May Not Survive Twenty-One Day Fast, State-Ment Declares

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN

POONA, INDIA, Feb. 19 (AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi grew steadily weaker today near the half-way mark in his fast against detention in the palace of Aga Khan and an attending physician declared it would "be a miracle" if the Indian leader survived the twenty-one-day ordeal.

The large staff of doctors anxiously consulting over the 73-year-old Gandhi agreed that he was "weak—weak—weak."

As Gandhi completed his tenth day on citrus juices and water, his doctors issued a statement asking his friends not to see him.

"Yes, it will be a miracle if Gandhi survives the three-weeks fast at his age," said Dr. B. C. Roy, one of India's best known physicians, when he emerged from the palace late this afternoon after spending several hours with Gandhi.

The 62-year-old doctor, showing definite signs of the strain himself, added, however, that "of course" Gandhi's peculiar constitution is capable of such miracles.

Gandhi's fast began Feb. 10 in protest over the refusal of Viceroy Lord Linlithgow to give him unconditional release.

President Backs Plan, Says Law Is Not Necessary

Endorses Idea To Help in Harvesting of Many Crops

Plans To Use Soldiers in Places Where They Are Needed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—President Roosevelt was reported today to have agreed that soldiers should help harvest crops in regions where there is a shortage of farm labor.

Chairman Fulmer (D-SC) of the House Agriculture committee said Mr. Roosevelt endorsed this idea in principle in a discussion with him at the White House, but suggested there was no need for legislation since the matter could be handled by executive order.

Mr. Roosevelt himself had indicated at his press conference earlier that he was backing the army firmly in its controversy with some congressional elements over the question of limiting the size of the armed forces, and suggested that older school children must shoulder a large share of the food production job.

Looks to School Boys

He told reporters that the size the army should be at the end of 1942 was decided last August by the dictates of military necessity, and the decision had not been changed. He was concerned over the food production outlook, he acknowledged, but he said he believed young people of high school age could do a lot to relieve the farm labor shortage.

Food production was understood to have figured in a conference with the chief executive's top economic advisers held during the day, but if any decisions were reached they were not disclosed. Some members of this group, the economic stabilization board headed by James P. Byrnes, hinted that protracted discussion of the 48-hour week had prevented them from going deeply into the farm program.

In other developments bearing on the farm program: J. Galbraith, deputy price administrator, told a Senate Agriculture sub-committee there would be some modification of an order freeing at January levels the prices producers may receive for milk.

Meat Cutters' Complaint

Harmony Pays Double In Big Shipyards

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—Harmony among riveters and welders pays off in Liberty ships at the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyards but the other kind of harmony, the musical kind, paid off today, too.

Clad in overalls, safety helmet and working gear, a negro quartet gave out with music of the deep south in a lunch hour contest and the singers won themselves a $25 war bond.

Their folk music just noted out a hill-billy trio from West Virginia, the Odell Brothers of Parkersburg. The runners-up won the right to pick a Liberty ship sponsor.

More Milk per Cow and More Eggs For Each Hen Urged by University

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Feb. 19 (AP)—One hundred more pounds of milk per cow, three more eggs per hen, 110 chickens for every 100 raised last year . . . those are some of the wartime goals of Maryland agriculture.

They were among the quotas announced today for the Free State's farmers by the University of Maryland extension service.

The program also calls for 115 turkeys for every ten raised last year, six brood sows for every five last year, eleven beef cattle for every ten, and 10.6 acres of field corn, 10.6 acres of rye, twelve acres of white potatoes and eleven acres of sweet potatoes for every ten acres of these grown last year.

In addition, the Extension Service asked the farmers to grow more snap beans, lima beans, sweet corn, tomatoes, carrots, cabbage, kale and onions.

Japanese Drive In China Meets With No Success

All Attacks Slowed Down, High Chinese Command Says

CHUNGKING, Feb. 19 (AP)—A Chinese high command communiqué said today that all the Japanese drives in Central, Southern and Southwestern China had been slowed down or thrown into reverse, although costly fighting continued in some areas.

Bloody battles were being fought in Northern Kiangsu province, north of Shanghai, as the Japanese tried to compress a forty-five-mile semi-circular line running through the lake country from Paoying to Fowling near the sea. The Chinese said all the Japanese thrusts had been halted.

Clash on Burma Road

The fighting in Western Yunnan, where the Japanese were trying to extend their grip along the Burma Road and were moving in several columns west of the Salween river, also was growing more intense.

In Hupeh province in Central China, where the Japanese were attempting new expeditions from their Ichang and Shashi bases on the Yangtze, the Chinese said they were in pursuit of one column after killing 400 of the invaders.

In Kiangsi province, south of the river, the Japanese were declared to have lost most of the force which took Pengxin and attacked Kaom. They were thrown back toward their base at Nanchang after a battle in the Kaom suburbs.

Japanese troops which had landed on the Luichow peninsula in the southern province of Kwangtung also had made no progress despite the support of planes.

Some speculation on the widespread activity suggested today that the Japanese were looking for a sugar coating for the pill they were forced by the Americans to swallow at Guadalcanal in the Solomons.

Military quarters said the Japanese radio threat yesterday to crush Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies may be only a feint for action elsewhere.

Those persons who took the threat seriously mentioned an Allied decision at Casablanca to smash Hitler first. The Japanese, believing their armies will not be needed elsewhere this year, may have decided to use them in China, these observers said.

Move To Prevent

would be just as responsible under this bill as he ever was."

White Answers Boone

White was silent when numerous others expressed their views, then as the House prepared for the vote, he arose to answer Boone.

"I am perfectly willing to go into this fight right now," the floor leader said.

"If this bill has merits, abusing me doesn't help it. I am held up to you to be knocked down because I oppose this bill."

"When did democracy stoop that low—that is an appeal to the lowest type of prejudice."

"I am the floor leader, of which I am not boasting, and I represent the administration, and you know that the governor vetoed this bill two years ago. If you send this bill up to the governor again, it will get no further, because he says this is a bad bill."

White said the bill removed from the law the provision that liquor should not be sold to a minor.

Boone said the same bill was passed by both the House and Senate two years ago, and that "White did not oppose it then."

Delegate John H. Reed said that "just because the governor vetoed this bill two years ago it is no excuse why we shouldn't send it to him again."

Reed recalled three recent cases in his district where tavern owners had been accused of selling to minors.

"Even when they are found innocent, minors leave the court room laughing, while the tavern owner still is forced to pay a couple of hundred dollars to a lawyer to get him out."

At this point, Delegate Clarence E. Tyler said he was "amazed that Baltimore city believes this is a local matter."

"This affects the entire state, and is something for all of us and it looks as though we are trying to shift responsibility from the tavern keeper to the child."

"Baltimore city is trying to deceive the counties."

The Senate, disinclined to argue after last night's stormy session in which it adopted on second reading administration amendments to the teacher-state employe bonus bill, hurried through a routine calendar, receiving six new bills and passing eight, four of which were House measures which will now go to the governor for signature.

Land Condemned For Naval Station

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut has signed a condemnation order giving the Navy department immediate use of a 2.27-acre tract in Calvert county for naval training purposes.

The Navy department said at Washington that the Drum Point estate, owned by Judge John B. Gray, Jr., would be used for "ambitious training."

The use of the land was taken for a period of a year renewable at the wish of the government.

Germans Facing Greater Peril, Simpson Asserts

Early Coming of Spring Slows Efforts To Escape from Traps

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

New and grave portents of disaster for shaken and retreating Nazi armies in Southern Russia can be read into German high command reports of unseasonably high temperatures hampering their withdrawal to the Dnieper line. Sacrifice of heavy equipment, munitions and stores through inability to move them over flooded streams, mud-clogged roads or sodden fields must result on an incalculable scale even if troops escape behind the river.

Normally spring thaws are due in the middle of March in the lower sectors of the Dnieper drainage basin below Kiev and Kharkov. Fifty-degree temperatures are reported now, however, starting the runoff of melting snow and ice prematurely.

Large Force in Danger

It is east of the north-south spaul of the Dnieper between Orsha in the north and Kiev in the south, and north of its south-eastward trend below Kiev to find its way around the great Dnieper plateau to the Black Sea that the main tributaries of the river lie. It is in that vast area, too, east of the Dnieper bend and west of Kharkov to Kiev that the major portions of Nazi southern armies are attempting to extract themselves from Russian traps.

Northward, where the Russians encircled drive to crack the Orel redoubt of the Nazi "hedge hog" system in the center, is making ominous progress, spring thaws are not normally due before late April.

For that reason, new emphasis noted on the Soviet efforts to take Orel and ominously threaten Bryansk and the whole Nazi supporting line in the center to Smolensk and Vitebsk is especially significant. Russian forces at Belev, due north of Orel, are reported on the move again, indicating that Russian strategy contemplates shifting the attack from the south to the center once the spring thaw sets in southward.

Huge Red Reserves Ready

Tremendous as have been the Russian forces thrown into offensive action at Stalingrad, in the Caucasus, against the Don-Donets basin and northward around the Kursk-Orel hinge between the south and central fronts, there is every reason to believe that Stalin's major reserve concentration is in the Moscow theater. That is the natural locale for it because of direct multiple rail and road connections between the Moscow hub and any part of the fighting front from the Baltic to the Sea of Azov.

Once Orel goes down, there is small chance that Bryansk long can remain in enemy hands. The usefulness of Bryansk and of Roslavl and Smolensk farther to the northwest for either attack or defensive purposes is already badly impaired by events in the south.

Russians Drive

a vast network of Ukrainian railways leading to the Dnieper which flows southeastward across most of the Ukraine.

Closing in on Orel

North of Kursk the Russians also were closing in on Orel. This key Nazi base formerly linked the central front with the now shattered German lines based on Kursk, Belgorod and Kharkov. The Russians said yesterday their armies were only thirty miles to the east of the city.

In the Donets basin and west of Rostov, far to the southeast of Kharkov, the Russians had all but isolated Taganrog by seizing a point twenty-five miles to the north of the railway leading to Stalingrad.

The Russians announced earlier the capture of ten more towns on the approaches to the big German base of Orel and declared the whole Donets basin was alive with battles as the Red army fought day and night to clear the ravaged region of the enemy.

The Germans counter-attacked west of Kharkov, too, but mobile Soviet infantry fell on the flank and rear.

The German communiqué said renewed Russian attacks were repelled in the Kharkov area, south-east of Orel and on the Donets front. Continued attempts to pierce the Nazi line south of Lake Ladoga, near Leningrad and southeast of Lake Ilmen also were reported repelled.

Gandhi

his all-India Congress party began its civil disobedience campaign, and has been held since within the guarded walls of the ornate palace.

His weight, recorded daily, is reported to have dropped several pounds.

He has become too weak to read newspapers, to carry on his usual voluminous correspondence, but he insists upon continuing his daily routine as much as possible.

Gandhi's own attitude toward the fast was expressed in a simple statement to friends:

"If it is God's will, I will live through it. If not, I die."

Stock Up Today

showing, (to use hypothetical examples), that a certain size can of peas will cost eight points or a certain size can of peaches will cost ten points.

Everyone, regardless of age or occupation, will have forty-eight points to "spend" during the month of March. Every retail store will be required to collect coupons of certain denominations for every purchase of canned goods.

The ration coupons bearing these point values will be distributed in a nation-wide registration beginning Monday. One adult of each family will be able to get the ration books, known as war ration book number two, from a nearby school, house or other public place by exhibiting the number one ration books already held by his family. The number one books now are being used for sugar, coffee, and shoes.

Newspapers Aiding

Many newspapers are printing copies of a "consumer declaration" which will serve as the application blank for the new ration books. Householders are urged by OPA to clip these from their papers or obtain copies from ration boards and to fill them out Sunday in preparation for the registration.

The form requires each family to report the number of cans (over eight ounces) it has in excess of five for each member of the family. Families which report an excess will lose from their new ration books one eight-point stamp for each excess can.

Consumers must fill out the form even if they do not have more than five cans per person.

In answer to other questions, OPA said that people who do not use canned goods or have a large stock that could last for many months are not required to apply for ration book number two but would be wise to apply anyway because the same book will be used to ration meat. The meat rationing date has not been set but officials hope to start it about March 23.

No Penalties Imposed

Another question was why families living in the country or other isolated places and accustomed to keeping large stocks of canned goods on hand will be "penalized" by the deduction of eight-point stamps for every can over five per person. OPA's answer is that the deduction is "not a penalty," and merely a means of evening up the distribution of limited supplies of canned goods among people who do and don't have large stocks.

In this connection OPA reminded consumers that regardless of how many excess cans they have, they cannot lose more than half of their ration points. Also, the agency said, no one need give up his excess cans since the deductions will square him with the government.

OPA also cautioned against counting cans of canned fish and canned meat, sale of which was suspended Wednesday night. Canned fish and canned meat will not be rationed until meat is rationed and need not be counted at the present time.

OPA announced that it has arranged with the Office of Civilian Defense to mobilize hundreds of thousands of volunteer workers in every community to learn the details of food rationing and act as "official explainers" at schoolhouses, stores and other public places.

Tonight the Agriculture department issued orders which, it said, will increase civilian supplies of canned vegetables from next summer's pack by an estimated 10,000,000 cases. Most of the increase will be on canned tomatoes and snap beans.

Smaller increases for civilians will be provided in asparagus, lima beans, and corn, but larger percentages of beets and carrots were ordered set aside for the armed forces and shipment abroad, with the result that civilians will get less of those two vegetables.

Increased percentages of the 1943 pack of grapefruit juice, orange juice and pineapple juice were ordered reserved for government use, but the reserved percentages of apricots, fruit cocktail, peaches and pears were smaller. The increases and decreases virtually balanced.

The purpose of the order, officials said, is to insure that supplies are readily available and purchasable by the government when needed. In all instances, quantities of canned food not taken by the government are released for civilian use.

Hyndman Residents Will Not Register Monday or Tuesday

HYNDMAN, Pa., Feb. 19—Registration for War Ration Book Two for Hyndman borough and Londonderry township will be held in Hyndman high school and Londonderry Township Consolidated school, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week, Lloyd G. Keller, principal of Hyndman high school, announced tonight.

All applicants, Keller said, must bring with them to the place of registration their consumer declaration forms. Registration will be held on Wednesday and Thursday from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. and on Friday from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. Keller urged all persons to register as early as possible.

Classes will be held in both Hyndman high school and Londonderry consolidated school on Monday and Tuesday, Keller said, but will be suspended Wednesday, Thursday and Friday so that instructors can conduct the registration.

KEYSER, W. Va., Feb. 19—Harry Truman Burk, 71, died at his home early this morning. A son of the late Richard and Mary E. Whetzel Burk, he was born in Swanton, Md., where he was engaged in farming until 1928 when he came to Keyser.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Droleman Burk, a son, Paul Burk, Cumberland, Md., and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Jeffreys, Cumberland. Funeral services will be held Monday in the Church of the Assumption with interment in St. Thomas cemetery.

Bonney Rites Held

Funeral services for James Edward Bonney, who died Tuesday, were held at his home in McCoolle this afternoon with the Rev. R. R. Brill and the Rev. Mr. Kepling of Westminster, officiating. Pallbearers were Emory Thompson, Brown Duckworth, Wallace Clark, William Clark, Frank Fitzgerald, Harmon Robinson and Arthur Glass.

Mills Rites Held

Funeral services for John Robert Mills, who died Wednesday, were held at his home today. The Rev. R. L. Brill, pastor of the United Brethren church, officiated. Interment was in Queens Point cemetery. Pallbearers were W. L. Blackburn, A. C. Rinehart, William Murray, Tribby Adams, Leroy Barreck and Mandy Tyler.

The Moose club will sponsor a dance from 8:30 to 12 o'clock tomorrow night at the Moose home. The Young Aristocrats will furnish the music.

Personals

Dr. E. V. Romig, president of Mineral County Board of Education and James C. Miller of Westminster, are patients in Potomac Valley hospital.

Yeoman C. E. Bright who is with the navy in Washington and Mrs. Bright who teaches in the Romney school are visiting his mother, Mrs. J. H. A. Brown, over the weekend.

Capt. T. C. Giffin, who is stationed with the army at Newport News, Va., is spending a short furlough with his wife and children here.

Mrs. Fred Pfeifer and son Freddie of Charleston are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Bright.

Paskum Rites Held In Westernport

WESTERNPORT, Feb. 19—Funeral services were held this morning at 9 o'clock in St. Peter's Catholic church, Westernport, for Mrs. Anna Paskum, 70, Westernport, who died in the Woman's hospital, Baltimore, last Monday morning. A solemn high requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. S. J. Chylinski. The Rev. Joseph Gedra, Immaculate Conception church, Washington, D. C., a former assistant pastor at St. Peter's, was the deacon, and the Rev. Leon K. Warczynski, was the sub-deacon. Interment was in St. Peter's cemetery.

Benjamin C. Vance Rites Held In Petersburg

Benjamin Coke Vance, 89, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. C. Bensenhaver at Rig February 17, 1943. Funeral services were conducted in Petersburg Friday afternoon at 2 at the United Brethren church.

Vance, born November 29, 1854, was the son of Robert and Malinda Harman of Vance, Pendleton county. January 28, 1875, he married Miss Susan Rebecca Lough, also of Pendleton county, who preceded him in death some years ago.

For many years Vance taught in the schools of Pendleton, Grant and Hardy counties. When he stopped teaching, he had completed fifty terms, and many of those who later taught in local schools had their first education from him. After his teaching days were over, he remained active, representing a nursery. He was always vitally interested in the community and the young people and their problems.

Vance is survived by nine children: Mrs. C. C. Bensenhaver and Kenneth H. Vance, Rig; Mrs. Linnie Weaver, Indiana; Mrs. Bessie Shobe and Mrs. Essie Roby, Petersburg; Mrs. Chloe Speight, Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Mary Dent, New London, Conn.; Harman Vance and Mrs. Leola Hemmighart, Winchester, Va.

Nazis Leave One Area

(The German radio reported that Axis troops had withdrawn from the mountain area near the southern end of the Mareth line, perhaps indicating that no all-out resistance was planned in that area. The Nazis said Montgomery was attacking with both artillery and strong infantry forces.)

Officers here stressed the gallant struggle offered in the earlier heavy fighting by the inexperienced Americans and poorly equipped French on what was a long and thinly defended front.

The admittedly heavy losses in American men and armor were believed here to mean that the British Eighth army for the time being would assume the main burden of driving the Axis forces out of southern Tunisia.

(The Italian communiqué claimed an aggregate of 2,876 Allied prisoners taken in recent actions; the capture or destruction of 149 Allied tanks, 95 armored cars, 36 motor-transported guns, 66 other guns, six trucks and a large number of planes.)

"Inexperience" was the most widely held reason for the American defeat in the first major test against combined formations from Rommel's 21st Panzer division, which fought in Libya, and the Tenth Panzer division, which was engaged in Poland and France.

The Germans were reported to have used the tactic of sending several tanks near an American concentration and inducing a much heavier force out to attack. This heavier force was then drawn into artillery ambush.

It was estimated that American and French troops were holding two-thirds of the total Allied line in Tunisia when Rommel began his attack. The British held the remaining third in the north near Tunis and Bizerte, where the major portion of Axis General von Arnim's strength is believed stationed.

Without large reserves behind them the Americans faced the dilemma of risking a major breakthrough by Rommel or failing back to more tenable positions. Although suffering severely the Americans accomplished the withdrawal in good order.

Roosevelt Says

Mr. Roosevelt, introducing the reporters to Madame Chiang, remarked that it was about his 1,000th press conference in ten years and he thought it a very good sign that he and the press rather liked each other.

Madame Chiang's visit, he said, would be of very great help to America because this country and China not only were close to each other in thought and objective, but had the same ideals. He continued:

China Much Older

"China, in the last—less than half a century—has become one of the great democracies of the world and we must remember always that her civilization is thousands of years older than ours. And that is why I feel that we in this country have a great deal more to learn about China than China has to learn about us."

Madame Chiang replied with praise for the way the press kept the secret of the president's Casablanca trip, until it was officially announced, and an expression of hope that the Chinese press could lead its country to complete social and political democracy.

A reporter, with reference to the great impression Madame Chiang made in addressing Congress yesterday, inquired whether Mr. Roosevelt had asked her to remain in Washington as his liaison officer with the legislators. Deftly, she turned this aside with another compliment: The president needed no such officer.

was left afire and hitting another amidships.

In addition to the four bombers lost in raiding Wilhelmshaven, two fighters and a coastal command plane failed to return.

Two-ton bombs and incendiary showers laid "a carpet of fire" all over the docks of Wilhelmshaven. In the words of one returning pilot, "many industrial buildings were left in flames."

The moonlight was so bright that the beams of ack-ack searchlights were all but invisible.

Elsewhere the weather was ideal for night fighter engagements and many encounters were reported, with at least one enemy fighter destroyed.

The air ministry said Ventura bombers, with a fighter escort, attacked the docks at Den Helder in Holland this afternoon and started large fires. One of the fighter planes failed to return.

Slight enemy activity over the west coast of England this afternoon was reported in a communiqué issued by the ministries of air and home security, which said no bombs were dropped.

Tax Compromise Plan Ordered By Committee

Proposed Pay-as-You-Go Proposals Discarded after Hearings

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—All proposed pay-as-you-go tax plans, including one that would have cancelled out one income tax year completely, were rejected by the House Ways and Means committee today, and a subcommittee appointed to draft an acceptable compromise.

The plans voted down included a modified form of one submitted by Beardsley Ruml, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which would by-pass one tax year.

However, the Ruml plan supporters were not downcast, and privately expressed confidence because of the support it received in the committee. The Ways and Means members were pledged to secrecy as to the number of votes each plan received.

New Bill Ordered

The twenty-five committee members ran into a stalemate after three weeks of study of current collection proposals. The subcommittee was instructed "to provide a new bill including the principle of pay-as-you-go and collection at the source."

This put the whole committee definitely on record as favoring a withholding levy, probably of around twenty per cent on net taxable income, as a means of making weekly, semi-monthly or monthly deductions from earnings for accumulation against actual taxes to be computed after each year.

Carlson Modifies Bill

Rep. Carlson (R-Kas.), author of the bill embracing the Ruml plan to cancel out the 1942 tax year, modified his proposal as the committee neared a vote to provide that the taxpayer would be obligated only for the one of the two years 1942 or 1943 in which his taxable income was highest. He proposed also that 1942 taxes of all service men with incomes under $5,000 be cancelled.

Roosevelt Rebuffed

Earlier the Ways and Means committee made its rejection of President Roosevelt's salary ceiling program official—"definitely and very loudly" according to Rep. Disney (D-Okla.).

Adopt Disney's Plan

It adopted Disney's plan to repeal the president's order limiting salaries to $25,000 after taxes and peg them instead at their pre-war levels by the same fifteen to ten vote with which it approved Disney's move originally last Saturday before Mr. Roosevelt's counter-proposal was received. Reconsideration was necessitated today by a parliamentary technicality.

Mr. Roosevelt had offered to rescind his limitation on salaries if Congress would approve a super-tax designed to limit all individual income to $25,000 net for single persons and $50,000 for married couples.

Instead the committee voted that salaries above $25,000 might remain at the levels existing before Pearl Harbor and that no salaries which were below that figure then could rise above it now. The measure would retain the treasury's present controls over unwarranted salary increases but Disney said it would remove the matter from Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes' executive file.

freedom that we have pledged to the world."

Tonight's shipment totaled 20,000 barrels. Within a few days it will be doubled.

50,000 Barrels a Day

Oil is flowing through the line at the rate of 50,000 barrels daily and is expected to reach a daily maximum of 300,000 barrels within six to eight weeks. In the line at all times will be 1,525,000 barrels of oil.

An 857-mile extension to the east coast now is under construction with completion scheduled for June 1.

In addition to tank car shipments from this temporary terminus, some oil will flow through a new four-teen-inch line from Norris City to Enfield—five miles away—to connect with the Ohio oil company's pipe line system to Pennsylvania.

The first train shipment was consigned to the Gulf Oil Company at Philadelphia.

Small Force

them and learned on the way that another tank column was striking from Sbeitla, trying to cut off Gafsa.

Drive Germans Back

The Americans met the enemy force from Gabes and knocked out six tanks and drove back the others. Then they made a quick reversal of the field to intercept the second German column. They knocked out eight tanks and sent these Nazis also into retreat.

Then came a period of fantastic warfare when the little Allied force would strike out swiftly at some point to drive the Germans out and then turn the place over to French infantry. The Allied force would then move swiftly back to base or try another attack so the enemy could never learn where they were or how strong they were.

Using this device, they saw plenty of Tunisian scenery and managed to clean out their big triangle.

Wardens Review Air Raid Problems

Myers Emphasizes All Lights Must Be Turned Off on Blue Signal

Questions arising from Wednesday's daylight alert testing the new air raid signals were discussed at a meeting of chief wardens, assistants and senior wardens of the six city zones in city hall auditorium last night.

Herman L. Myers, assistant warden for the county, who conducted the meeting, emphasized that during blackouts all lights must be extinguished when the blue warning, a steady blast, sounds.

This means, he said, that street lights, and those in homes, offices, business establishments and any location at all must be extinguished on the blue signal. In daylight alerts, however, lights can remain burning.

While the blue warning is in effect, Myers said, pedestrians and automobiles can keep moving but the latter, if the blue warning sounds at night, must proceed with the down beam of the headlights burning. Speed cannot exceed fifteen miles an hour.

Myers asserted that shields must be placed on the city's traffic lights if they are to remain in operation during the blue warning at night. Shields had been placed on the lights, he added, but have been removed.

Twelve air whistles to sound air raid warnings are being erected in the city, Myers told the wardens, and should be in operation shortly. The whistles are being erected at service stations where compressed air is available.

Dr. Robert W. Work, civilian defense director for the county, attended the meeting, and again explained the new air raid signals to the wardens. He repeated his announcement Thursday night that turning on of street lights will signify the all clear.

An Obnoxious State Law

THE MARYLAND LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS is exerting efforts to bring about repeal of the Declaration of Intent Law, by which a citizen is denied the suffrage privilege unless he or she has given a year beforehand a formal statement of intention to reside within the state; and the reasons it advances are compelling.

"When world events are focusing our attention on the privileges of free elections and the right and duty of every citizen to participate in them," the league states, "any law which tends to disfranchise large numbers of honest citizens, undermines constitutional principles. We believe that residence requirements, strictly enforced, are necessary as safeguards against fraudulent voting. The constitution of Maryland makes such a provision, which would be unaffected by repeal of the law."

The league properly contends that the law is not only undemocratic in principle but also that it is manipulated as to control voting. Moreover, it points out that it is discriminatory in its application throughout the state. In some counties, citizens must declare their intentions in person and at certain places on certain days; in others any day will do but hours are restricted; while in still others declarations are taken by telephone, a wife may declare for her husband or any reputable citizen may be deputized to take declarations.

The law is, as the Republican party organization has formally declared, pernicious and un-American, as it not only hampers and restricts but also actually prevents thousands of persons from voting who otherwise would be entitled to vote. Repeated efforts have been made over many years to repeal the law, but the Democratic party, through its preponderant majorities in the legislature and the connivings of its bosses, has prevented this remedial legislation.

Various other organizations are demanding repeal of this suffrage smothering device. Among them is the Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Union Council, which places its repeal at the top of its 1943 legislative program, pointing out that repeal now is an emergency matter in order to make it possible for the war workers of Baltimore city, as well as others, to cast their votes.

The present General Assembly should see the justice of that and repeal the obnoxious law, but it probably will not in deference to the state Democratic bosses, who want it retained for selfishly partisan advantages.

Church Tax Should Be Repealed

CHURCH CONGREGATIONS and similar religious organizations have lately been notified by state authorities that they are in debt to the state in taxes. These represent a so-called franchise tax which appears to have been slipped over on the people in the last General Assembly in pursuance of the attempt of the administration to grab all moneys it could from the people. Most of the churches were unaware that this tax had been imposed and it has come as quite a surprise to be notified that they are indebted for two years of this franchise assessment and will soon be in debt for another year of it.

It has long been the established custom not to impose taxes upon churches or church properties for the obvious reason of preserving freedom of religion through safeguarding it from the pressure or oppression of taxing forces. This so-called franchise tax violates that long-settled principle. It is true that the tax is small—only $10 per annum—but as is always the case with any sort of new taxation, given an ell and it takes an inch, and once established it generally sticks. This imposition on the churches of Maryland should be removed by the present General Assembly.

Congress Should Do The Basic Planning

UNDOUBTEDLY one of the most absurd paradoxes of the many to which the American people have been treated is that provided by Mr. Roosevelt's observation that he is a great economizer, a veritable watch-dog of the treasury, while the real spend-thrifts are those who would deny him the money to fritter away on the National Resources Planning Board and other similar administration agencies for post-war planning. If there ever was a spend-thrift in governmental management, Mr. Roosevelt is the tops in all history. One may wonder whether he made his observation without actually cracking a smile.

At any rate, post-war planning ought to be primarily in the hands of the Congress, which will have the final say so far as this nation is concerned, and it is good to see that presumably independent branch of the government moving to that end. Some rudiments of what this nation can be expected to do, or will be enabled to do, when the peace comes ought to be set down by the Congress if for no other reason than to offset the varied fantastic peregrinations of twaddling commentators and more particularly of members of the administration and thus to avoid undue misconceptions on the part of our Allies and various other peoples of the world.

Many congressmen are skeptical of the administration's postwar aims, and well may they be in view of all the glamorous and contradictory representations about it that have been made. But Congress ought to get busy on its own hook now in view of the report that some 150 plans are being cooked up by administration men and agencies and this does not necessarily mean that it should not avail itself of help from administration thinkers and experts.

Russian Victory Is A Spur for America

NOW the Russians have written the name of Kharkov in letters of fire under the names similarly written, of Stalingrad and Rostov. And Kiev seems due next.

Even to the most cautious—to those most anxious to avoid the pitfalls of over-optimism—it must be fully apparent that the Russian counter-offensive is developing into one of the gigantic victories of all military history. This certainly is plain enough to a harried German general staff—and particularly to Field Marshal von Manstein, who, it is reported, has picked up where Hitler's intuition left off.

So "the Russian phase" of the war looms larger and larger in the pattern of United Nations victory. But—and this must be emphasized and re-emphasized—this does not mean that "the American phase" is to be one of comfortable waiting for victory to appear with a minimum of fighting.

The "unconditional surrender" which Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill pledged at Casablanca can be brought about only by complete and crushing defeat of Germany. Such complete and crushing defeat can be achieved only by invasion of Europe by American and British armies.

And such an invasion can be brought about only by completion of the lagging job in French North Africa. This means that there must be heavy action and swift action and successful action in Tunisia.

Going Back Where It Really Belongs

SETTING ASIDE all considerations of the propriety, the necessity and the economic justice or injustice of the communistic scheme advanced by President Roosevelt to place an arbitrary limit on salaries and incomes, there is one thing about it on which this newspaper believes almost everybody will agree. This is that the Congress is moving quite properly to restore the authority for it into its own hands.

That is where any such action belongs as the Congress has both the constitutional power and the responsibility to legislate on such matters. Whatever action is taken should be taken by the Congress, and not by presidential usurpation of a constitutional function; and both experience and practicality indicate that the revenue end can better be achieved through taxation than by drawing a line of demarcation at any certain income point.

Italian casualties of 50,000 in January are admitted by Rome. Things really are becoming lively when Mussolini's soldiers are unable to keep out of range of the guns.

Children at Funerals

By MARSHALL MASLIN

The long waiting . . . the strangers going in and out . . . the hushed voices . . . the perfume from the funeral pieces . . . the waits, the waits, the waits . . . the hard chairs, the silences, the coughing, the restlessness, the suppressing sobbing, the solemn singing, the funeral services themselves . . . And the deadly strain on a sad, hushed, bottled-up and frightened child who is taken to a funeral because people think that "children will find out about death eventually and they might as well know about it now."

That shows what I think about children going to funerals. It seems to me that I have always been hearing people argue about whether children should go to funerals or should be sent away when death comes to the house of a friend. The argument is never settled. Some people think children should go to funerals and some are bitterly opposed; some people think children should know about death while others think it should be kept from them as long as possible.

Well, it seems to me that it depends on the funeral itself, and too many of us talk as though funerals and death were identical. I went to a few funerals when I was a youngster and without exception they were monotonous agony. I met death once or twice when I was a boy and he had a dignity about him that even a child can face and endure.

A child knows when death enters a home. He knows what he has lost forever, he learns soon enough what it means and almost any child has enough strength to take it in and make death a part of life. It does not deform a child to know that one whom he loves is gone from him and out of this life. But so many funerals are bare and meager. They are so unworthy of death itself, such poor representations of the loss that death brings to the human heart.

I think a child might even see his own father or mother die, sweetly and calmly and bravely, and be stronger all the rest of his life for that experience. But he sees no death, he is merely "taken to a funeral." He sees the putting away of the body and rarely the passing out of the spirit; and instead of death he is given that ineffective substitute a funeral so often is.

Yes, I would take a child to a funeral that is a strong and true tribute to the dead. I would even allow a child to stand by a death-bed. But no child has any place at most of the funerals I have seen.

Three-Way Fire Is Now Directed At Bureaucracy

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington's wartime bureaucracy is described by one set of its adverse critics as power-mad. Another bunch find their main fault with it on the ground that it's socially, communally or otherwise subversive of our traditionally democratic form of government.

Charles P. Stewart

Representative Joseph W. Martin, Republican leader in the House of Representatives, made a speech the other day on the former thesis. Representative Martin Dies, on the Democratic side, is the outstanding exponent of the latter supposition.

And there are plenty of complaints, from both camps, of bureaucratic extravagance—pure wastefulness, with no particular object in view. Senator Alben W. Barkley, Rooseveltian manager in the upper chamber, recently joined in this outcry. When a statesman of "Dear Alben's" rating lets out a holler concerning his own administration, it really is deserving of attention.

News Is Supplied

Well, as an observer, my own theory is that the bureaucrats are not so much power-mad. I find them accommodating enough. Nobody bothers me with censorial rules. My experience with the outfit is that they cough up such news as they have available and are glad to get it printed. Indeed, I have had them express appreciation to me for helping to circulate it. Some of them want to see more of it disseminated than overhead authority is inclined to authorize.

And I am skeptical of that subversive activities idea, too. If a chap like Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, of New York, is such an influence, maybe a bit of it prevails. I do not think that Fiorello is, though, and, if there really are any subversives in his crowd, I do not believe he indorses them. I knew that bird away back in Congress. He was a liberal and maybe a radical but no revolutionary.

Extravagance Expected

Extravagance undoubtedly is copious. It was to have been expected, I suppose, the bureaucratic organizations having been scraped together so rapidly.

What seems to me to be the bureau folk's worst fault is that they are too internally expert and expect everybody else to be equally so. The average individual must have realized this lately from the trouble involved in filling out his income tax report.

A multi-millionaire corporation can afford to employ a financial shark to provide the treasury with its desired information, but an ordinary citizen finds himself in heck's own hole trying to determine what he owes to Uncle Samuel. He is told that the government will supply him with an official to post him as to the few hundreds he is stuck for, but it takes him days to locate the proper functionary. In the meantime he is being warned constantly to "get a wiggle" or the penalties against him will be something awful.

A Japanese Puzzle

An income tax blank, for a common person, like me, ought to be simple. What is the income? What deductions am I entitled to? Already knowing the answers to both these questions, I can calculate the amount of my indebtedness in ten minutes. The Treasury makes the problem one of hours and hours of figuring instead. It is entirely due to those treasury experts' anxiety to show everybody how smart they are.

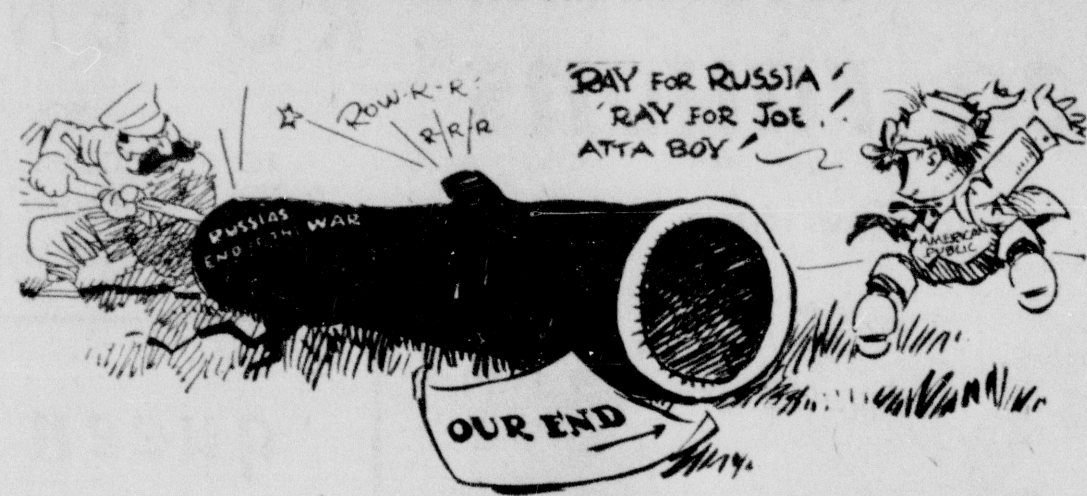

Bill Bullitt, when solicitor general of the United States, used to say that there never should be general legislation that the generality of individuals cannot understand. Now the whole thing is a Chinese puzzle. I mean a Japanese puzzle. The

WE'D BETTER MIND OUR OWN END OF THE LOG

Arbitrary Executive Power Is Brought To Tense Issue in Fight Over Salaries

By MARK SULLIVAN

Chinese being such good friends of ours, I hate to imply anything so mean about them.

Questionnaires Abominable

Now, I have concentrated on income tax returns, because nearly everyone is so currently familiar with them. However, federal agencies' questionnaires are a publically-recognized affliction of the last eighteen months, during which 7,025 separate and distinct samples have been broadcast—and this counts only those issued by special wartime bureaus; those from the regular departments are extra. Little business cannot answer them adequately. It hasn't the facilities.

Senator Byrd's joint congressional committee on nonessential expenditures supplies the additional news that even big business has been compelled to sacrifice considerable manpower in the gathering of unnecessary data for these quizzes. And, finally, the committee reveals that a large proportion of the filled-out questionnaires are not even studied by the bureaus responsible for them, but are filed away for the benefit of posterity if anyone.

Protection For Workers

From the Pittsburgh Press

The War Labor Board has laid down a general rule that "a regularly established union shop or closed shop shall remain regularly established for the duration of the war." Another, older general rule of the board is to award "union security"—that is, to order that workers who once join unions must remain members for the duration of the union contracts or lose their jobs.

We do not here challenge the wisdom of either rule. It may be necessary to the winning of the war that unions which have the closed shop should keep it, and that those which do not have the closed or union shop should be able to hold their memberships.

But both rules unquestionably mean use of the government's power to restrict the freedom of individual workers. A member of a union which has been granted "union security" cannot withdraw without being fired from his job. Now a member of a closed-shop union apparently cannot change that status even if he and a majority of his fellow workers agree that they would prefer an open shop.

So we believe it becomes more than ever necessary that individual workers should have government's protection against arbitrary, tyrannical or dishonest use of the power government has given unions. And we are glad to find so eminent an authority as William H. Davis, chairman of the War Labor Board, agreeing that this protection should be provided by Congress.

Speaking in New York last week, Mr. Davis asserted that a union recognized by the government as a collective bargaining agent should be required (1) to hold its financial statements open to public inspection, and (2) to establish and follow a constitutional procedure for election of officers, thus providing that officers must be voted upon at least every two years so that members may have free opportunity to get rid of racketeering leaders.

The controversy between the president and Congress, about a $25,000 limit on salaries, has entered a new stage.

The present stage is made at once tense, complex, and rather dangerous by a proposal made by the president.

For understanding the new phase, review briefly the history of the issue. It began last April 27. On that date Mr. Roosevelt, in a message to Congress calling for a legislative program to combat inflation, made a suggestion, saying:

"In time of this grave national danger, when all excess income should go to the war, no American citizen ought to have a net income, after he has paid his taxes, of more than $25,000."

Congress, in writing the anti-inflation bill, did not include the $25,000 salary limit. The committee handling the bill considered the president's suggestion specifically, and after deliberation omitted it. The bill, however, as finally passed by Congress, did authorize the president to stabilize wages and salaries, and in that connection "to correct gross inequities." Taking advantage of this phrase the president, October 3 last, issued an executive order providing that no salary should exceed $25,000 net.

Authority Seen in Bill

By that the issue arose. The president takes the position that his action was justified by the language of the bill, and that he was advised to this effect by Attorney General Biddle. Against this, the position of Congress is that when Congress, through its committees, considers a suggestion from the president, and does not adopt it, then Congress must be presumed to intend that the suggestion be not put in effect.

In Congress this month began a process of undoing what the president had done. The Ways and Means committee of the House was framing a very necessary bill—to increase the authorized limit of the national debt from 125 to 210 billion, in order to provide for the expanding cost of the war. To this measure, the committee added a "rider" undoing the president's $25,000 limit on salaries.

At this point the president wrote a letter to the committee expressing hope that it would not add a rider to the debt limit bill. For this action, the president had some justification. Whenever the debt limit bill should come to him for signature, he would be more or less obliged to sign it, because of the urgent necessity of increasing the limit. If the bill contained the rider dealing with the $25,000 salary limit, the president would be obliged to accept the rider. It is not possible for a president to sign part of a bill and veto a part. For Congress thus to force the president's hand has always been recognized as dubious. It is an action only justified by some extraordinary circumstance. Whether the present condition is sufficiently extraordinary is the heart of the issue.

Rider Prompts Deal Offer

The Ways and Means committee proceeded on its way—by a vote of 15 to 10 it adopted the rider. Thereupon Mr. Roosevelt wrote a letter to the committee in which he made a startling proposal—and thus brought about the present stage of the controversy. In effect the president proposed a trade. He would by his own action rescind his executive order about the $25,000 limit—provided Congress would, by appropriate legislation duly passed, achieve the same effect by bringing about a $25,000 limit.

Congress seems disposed not to accept the trade. The apparent disposition is to go ahead with the undoing of the president's executive order. At the same time there is already in Congress a proposal to limit salaries by a process free from the objections to the president's action, and strictly regular. By this, Congress would enact that no salary be higher than it was on the day we entered the war, December 7, 1941.

Wide Differences

Between the present proposed limitation on increase of salaries, specifically enacted by due process of the legislative body, and the arbitrary reduction of salaries imposed by the president, there are wide differences. They raise the whole broad issue of the separation of powers between the legislative and executive branches of government. That the present executive has tended to cross the boundary, and trespass upon the legislative power, is a conviction widely held, not only in Congress but generally. This tendency did not arise since we were at war, when some expansion of executive discretion is conceded; it went on before, and was widely recognized as disturbing.

In the present instance, if the president, without specific authorization by Congress, and even against the known wish and intention of Congress, can pick out a small special group of citizens, and put upon them an arbitrary salary limit of $25,000, he could pick out other groups and set up other limits—$24,000, or $20,000, or $15,000, or $5,000. By analogy, in fields other than salaries, he could take steps which everybody would recognize as alarming.

Lawrence Declares Public Is Entitled To Salary Ruling

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19.—President Roosevelt writes to Representative Doughton, chairman of the House Ways and Means committee, that before the recent executive order fixing the ceiling on salaries was issued an opinion from the Attorney General was obtained which attested to the legality of the order.

But the text of the legal opinion has not been made public, nor was it transmitted to the House Ways and Means committee. The American people are entitled to the text of the opinion, for it is plainly not a legal question which the attorney general decided, but a sociological or political question.

"I could not exercise the discretion vested in me by the Congress to adjust salaries," the President wrote, "without finding that it is a gross inequity in wartime to permit one man to receive a salary in excess of $67,200 a year while the government is drafting another man and requiring him to serve with the armed forces for $600 a year. . . . The correction of such inequities, I believed, would aid in the effective prosecution of the war."

Equity Puzzle

It would be interesting to know how the inequity was corrected by stopping at $67,200. Do the members of the armed services feel now when they get $600 a year and the executives of business get $67,200, such limitation "will aid in the effective prosecution of the war?"

This isn't a matter of law but of arbitrary political opinion, and if the attorney general sheds light on how this inequity was corrected, the public is entitled to know his reasoning.

It may be, of course, that the attorney general merely ruled that the president could arbitrarily limit salaries wherever he pleased and that Congress looks him such power. If so, one looks in vain for the record in the congressional debates which would even remotely show that Congress had any such intention. Again and again, the supreme court and the lower courts have read the debates in Congress or reports of congressional committees to find out what the legislative intent happened to be.

Record Is Plain

In this case there is a plain record that Congress acted on the assumption that the president would not do what he finally did. Indeed, it sometimes happens that a specific issue paralleling a later dispute develops discussion. In this instance, here is an excerpt from the debate:

"SENATOR VANDENBERG of MICHIGAN: If this language means anything at all as it is written today—and I do not see how it could come from the sources the senator (Mr. Brown, of Michigan) indicates, under the circumstances—it means that the president would have a right to adjust all prices, wages, and salaries solely for the purpose of correcting gross inequities, which means for social reform purposes, if he desires, regardless of any effect on the conduct of the war. Is not that true? Could he not, under that language, reduce all incomes to $25,000 by executive order?"

"SENATOR BROWN, of MICHIGAN: I desire to go into that subject later, but it is my judgment that the authority is not contained in a bill which stabilizes salaries as of September 15, 1942. I will say to the senator that the representatives of the two large organized labor organizations agreed with that view in the committee."

Administration Spokesman

Senator Brown was in charge of the Anti-Inflation bill on the floor of the Senate. He was spokesman for the administration. On his interpretation, other members of the Senate had a right to rely, for it was assumed he was speaking for the administration and knew its plans and purposes.

Nowhere in the debate is there the slightest record of any intention to reduce, for instance, pre-war salaries, yet the executive order issued by the president went back to salary contracts made as much as ten years ago between top executives and their companies for compensation in excess of $67,200.

The "repealer" proposed by Representative Disney, of Oklahoma, stipulates that salaries should be permitted which were in existence on December 7, 1941—the day of our entry into the war—but that new salaries must not go beyond $25,000 net. This, however, is the legislative body speaking and that's where the power to legislate really belongs.

Strange Facts about High Blood Pressure Are Listed by Doctor

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I have just run across some pronouncements by a medical man made several years ago, about high blood pressure which I believe still obtain and furnish some pointers which may be useful:

1. Doctors who have studied the condition most carefully do not know whether high blood pressure is a symptom or a disease.
2. One leading authority has put down fourteen basic causes for high blood pressure. This should be noted by those who write in and ask me what is "the" cause of high blood pressure.
3. Business worries, domestic troubles, personal anxiety and frustration can be contributing causes or at least causes which make the condition worse.
4. One can inherit a tendency toward the condition.
5. High blood pressure may exist for years without causing any symptoms.
6. Since it is a disturbance of the arteries and since the arteries go everywhere in the body, it is natural that a great many conditions are associated with it. For instance, angina pectoris, or heart pain, goes with high blood pressure. Also, kidney changes which may be reflected in the urine accompany it. An oculist may often detect high blood pressure by examining the eyes. When long continued, it may cause apoplexy and some mental deterioration.

7. About half the patients with high blood pressure live out their life expectancy.
8. Women bear high blood pressure better than men.
9. All plans for treatment should include psychological methods of treatment and some of the best results are accomplished by psychological means.

10. The basic rules for improvement are to eat less, smoke less, work less and sleep more.
11. Tobacco is far more harmful than a moderate use of alcohol.
12. There is no special treatment nor are there any drugs which will cure high blood pressure permanently.

A Chinese doctor once told some of my American friends that one trouble was efficiency, punctuality and discipline. He said, "A Chinese abhors efficiency because it leaves him no peace of mind; punctuality because he wants plenty of leisure; too much discipline interferes with personal liberty. You Americans play for your efficiency with high blood pressure."

Good advice for those who have high blood pressure is as follows:

1. Keep calm. Avoid war news and discussions.
2. Avoid stimulating food and drink.
3. Avoid constipation. Keep in good general health.
4. Avoid tight-fitting collars or any constriction around the neck.

Questions and Answers
H. B.:—In your opinion is surgery the only way to relieve the patient who is suffering from a toxic goiter?
Answer: No. I do not believe more than twenty-five per cent of patients suffering with toxic goiter should be submitted to surgery. The decision depends upon the severity of the case and many other circumstances which could be decided only by a physician on the ground.

A. B. C.: What causes one to be extremely short of breath when no heart disease is present?
Answer: Very few things and those are very rarely encountered. One is an acid condition of the blood. Real shortness of breath in most instances is due to the fact that the heart is overburdened either due to the heart itself or to high blood pressure or to the person's overweight.

Loyal Daughters To Discontinue Socials in Lent

Social functions will be discontinued during the Lenten season it was announced by Mrs. Marguerite Albertson at the meeting of the Loyal Daughters' Bible Class of Kingsley church Thursday evening at the church. Plans were made to hold the next meeting March 17 following the Lenten service. The devotional program opened with the hymn, "Have Thine Own Way," and was followed with a prayer by Mrs. Albertson.

A Valentine party was held at the conclusion of the Lenten service with members of the "Red" side in the attendance contest presenting "shadow movies." The performance by Mrs. Thelma Minke and Harley Messman was voted the best. A cake walk was also a feature of the entertainment, and the heart shaped cake decorated in white with small red hearts was awarded to Mrs. Emma Rexroad and Mrs. Viola Ruppert.

Other prizes for contest games were awarded to Mrs. Emma Watt, Mrs. Thelma Rizer, Mrs. Virginia Lillard, Mrs. Rhea Bolinger and James Ruppert.

The recreation hall was decorated with streamers of many colored paper hearts, suspended from the ceiling and reaching to each corner. In each window was a large lighted red heart.

Refreshments were served by the "Blue" side of the contest. The tables were decorated with streamers of crepe paper reaching from the corners of the tables to a light directly overhead, which was shaded by red crepe paper fringe. The centerpieces were valentines and the same motif was carried out in the favors.

Lieutenant Karns was the gold-medal man when he was graduated from the University of Maryland School of Medicine. He sailed in June, 1942, with the group from the University as a member of Col. Maurice Pinchoff's staff.

Miss Shafferman And Miss Heuer Entertain Sorority

Miss Mary Virginia Shafferman and Miss Helen Heuer entertained members of the Maryland Alpha Chapter of Delta Theta Chi sorority with an old fashioned costume party Thursday evening at the latter's home, Bedford street, and Miss Mary Rice was awarded the prize for wearing the oldest costume, a dress of 1878.

The entertainment program included various contests with Mrs. Helen Burke receiving the awards for anagrams. A prize was also given to Mrs. Catherine Beall for walking the longest distance to attend the party. A white elephant sale for the sorority featured the entertainment.

The Valentine motif was combined with the old fashioned theme for the decorations of the table, which was centered with a painted glass lamp and Valentines. Guests also received Valentine favors.

Party Will Be Given by Odd Fellows Group

Landlord-Tenant Affair Will Be Held in IOOF Temple Feb. 26

The Odd Fellows Temple Corporation will be hosts at a "Landlord-Tenant" party at 8:15 o'clock February 26 at the temple, 12 South Mechanic street, with E. S. Fox presiding.

Fraternism and patriotism will be the theme of the program which will be conducted before an improvised altar in the center of the floor with a miniature American flag for each member in the service and a lighted candle in the center.

Thomas F. Conlon, mayor, will be the guest speaker. Representatives from the Knights of Pythias lodge; the POS of A lodge, Colfax Rebekah lodge; Rubber Workers, Chosen Friends No. 34 and O. of R. C. No. 263 will give short talks and honor the members in the service.

P. H. Ingles will outline the history of the Odd Fellows Temple Corporation. In 1914 the noble grand of Chosen Friends Lodge No. 34, IOOF, appointed Harry Footer, J. Milton Patterson, Harry B. Simpson, James A. Young and William J. Harrison to acquire a building to be used as an Odd Fellows temple, and to organize the corporation. They became its first officers. The certificate of incorporation was issued to the state of Maryland October 9, 1914, and the first stock was issued in January, 1915.

The present officers are E. S. Fox, president; Joseph Klawin, vice president; P. H. Ingles, secretary-treasurer; Earl F. Cunningham and William H. Kight directors.

The program will also include group singing of patriotic songs, led by A. Florian Wilson, with Mrs. W. L. Ranck at the piano.

A social hour will conclude the program and refreshments will be served by the Colfax Rebekah lodge.

The present tenants include the United Rubber Workers Local No. 26; Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1; Knights of Pythias Lodge No. 60; Washington Camp No. 62, P.O.S. of A.; Chosen Friends Lodge, No. 34; Cumberland Encampment No. 23, IOOF; Canton Allegheny No. 4, IOOF, and its auxiliary, and the Order of Railway Conductors, No. 263.

George Washington's headquarters in the Riverside park, Greene street, will be open from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., Monday and Edgar Reynolds, commissioner of public property, issues an invitation to the public to visit the shrine.

Well-Directed Play Can Teach Child To Think

Games Should Call for Observing, Comparing and Matching

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

On the market are a number of fine toys which help the little child to grow familiar with blocks or large wooden pins of different shapes, sizes or colors. The other day I came across a toy which has an added appeal to the youngster of two or three; the proper block when fitted into the corresponding opening drops into a box out of sight.

This disappearance has to the very young child a kind of magic appeal. A resourceful parent or older child could easily make such a toy. Just to have a good-sized box with several holes of the same size, through which the youngster of nine months or a year might push some clothespins, would be fascinating.

As any one can see, all play by the baby and young child calls for observing, comparing, matching and classifying things is valuable. Indeed, all useful reasoning and thinking the rest of his life will involve observing, comparing, matching, classifying and organizing things, symbols and ideas. Now let me suggest some useful homemade devices which can exercise even the very young child in these basic steps of reasoning and thinking.

Sorting Articles

Set on the floor or table two saucers or other containers. Have a third (larger) container with approximately an equal number of pecans and English walnuts mixed together, or of checker men and dominoes, or of two other small objects noticeably different. Induce the little tyke to put the pecans, say, into one saucer and the walnuts into the other. Some children might do this long before the age of three or four.

By and by you might add a third saucer and a third group of a noticeably different objects in the larger container. The number of things thus to be sorted may be increased indefinitely. Of course, it

Colorful Mexicana

Dashing caballeros in all the vivid, natural colors of Mexico itself make a fascinating trim for kitchen towels. They go all through the weekly chores, even including a Sunday siesta. The lettering is in cross-stitch. Pattern 2874 contains a transfer pattern of seven motifs averaging 4 1/2 x 7 inches; list of materials required; illustration of stitches.

Send eleven cents in coins for this pattern to Cumberland News, Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

is better to keep the device very simple at first and to make it more complex only as the youngster gains ability and interest for something harder.

Pictured Cards

In the same way, you might induce the child to sort for fun a group of pictured cards placing on each pile all cards with exactly the same picture. You might have the child still farther advanced in such classification place on one pile pictures of different dogs, on another, pictures of different birds, and so on.

Older children in the family might provide, through such devices, many useful hours of fun for the younger; so might resourceful parents. Applying the foregoing principles could provide no end of useful fun for the young child at home.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Up to what age should the child have a regular afternoon nap?

A. Until school attendance interferes.

Q. My three-year-old boy says "I won't," when I tell him to do something.

A. This is a normal response at this age. Don't tell him at this age to do something; ask him and then let him choose how to respond. Try to persuade him to accede. If it is a matter of routine such as going to bed and your persuasion fails, pick him up and take him. On the way talk about his favorite story

Auto Application Blanks Being Mailed

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—Residents of all but three Maryland counties have received applications for the 1943-44 automobile license tags, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles W. Lee Elgin announced today.

Applications to Baltimore, Allegany and Harford county residents will have been mailed by late Tuesday, the commissioner said.

Maryland automobile licensees this year will be corner tabs bearing the large numerals 1944 and a serial number. The plates are to be attached to the upper right corner of the front license plate, Elgin said. No corner plate for rear tags will be issued and the large rear license plate must be left on automobiles when the new license year begins on April 1, Elgin explained.

In addition to the thirty-two cents per horsepower, fee postage costs will be included in the corner plate cost, Elgin pointed out.

The Canadian National is the only railway in North America which operates a shipbuilding yard.

Monrovia, capital of Liberia, was named after James Monroe, fifth president of the United States.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion, with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Ration Book Two Will Be Issued
Next Week*Hours of Registration in Garrett County Are Made Public

OAKLAND, Feb. 19.—War Ration book two will be issued at all schools in the county next week, February 24, 25, 26 and 27, it was announced this morning by Maurice Brookheart, chief clerk of the War Ration and Rationing Board. The hours of registration for the five high schools and the elementary school in Oakland are—Wednesday and Thursday, 1 to 4, and 7 to 9 p. m.; Friday, 1 to 4; Saturday, 9 a. m. to 12 noon.

Hours and number of days necessary for registration at all the county schools will be left entirely up to the teachers of those schools, it was stated, as those in charge thought that the full four days would not be needed in many localities.

Brookheart requests that one person register for all members of the family at the earliest possible date. Persons so registering must present War Ration Book one to obtain book two. Book one will still be used to obtain sugar, coffee and shoes.

A consumer declaration form must be filed in stating the number of cans of rationed food in excess of five per person and the number of pounds of coffee on hand as of November 28, 1942. Sale of most canned goods is restricted of all next week.

15 Men Accept Jobs

Fifteen men from this county are already working on dairy and general farms in other sections of the state, in response to the migratory farm labor movement, according to Kenneth R. Wagonman, of the Farm Security Administration.

Six of the men are single and nine have families. Wagonman said his agency was preparing to move the families next week. The fifteen are located in Frederick, Baltimore, Kent and Queen Anne's counties and have been at work for about three weeks.

He said single men were receiving $50 to $60 per month including room and board, and that married men were receiving the same with a tenant house and allowance of meat, milk, eggs, etc., included.

Most of these men were part time farmers, prop cutters and odd jobbers, Wagonman said.

The single men are Calvin Paugh, Audrey Keyser, George Paugh, Pat McCarthy, Keith Harsh and Robert Loughry. The married men whose families are to be moved next week include Norman Johnson, Peter Spiker, Charles Paugh, Leo Nesmith, Paul Poling, Arnold Sisler, Arthur Keyser, Bliss Spiker and Harry Rexrode.

Paying Off Notes
The County Commissioners announced yesterday at the conclusion of their regular meeting that they had already taken up a note of $20,000 held by a Baltimore bank, and had redeemed county orders held by Arthur Naylor amounting to $8,207.65, and those held by D. E. Orf, totaling $13,741.57, in an effort to reduce the county's indebtedness as quickly as possible. Unpaid warrants and notes as the beginning of the administration this

Garrett Delegation
Introduces Three
Bills in House

Three bills affecting Garrett county were introduced in the House of Delegates at Annapolis yesterday by the Garrett county delegation.

One would increase expenses for the county commissioners from $300 to $600 a year; another would increase the expenses for the sheriff from $300 to $600 a year and the third would increase from forty cents to sixty cents per day the amount paid the sheriff for boarding prisoners confined in the Garrett county jail.

The note and county orders were drawing six per cent interest, according to Jonas W. Sines, commissioner.

The payment of these debts was made possible due to collection of 1943 taxes thus far amounting to $110,000. Of this amount the Pennsylvania Electric Company has paid around $77,000. A discount of five per cent is allowed for taxes paid during February; four per cent if paid during March or April, and three per cent if paid during May and June.

15 Below Zero

The thermometer went below zero again this morning, the fourth time this week, but the 15 below registered today didn't make the impression that 10 below did on Monday, for that was accompanied by a brisk wind.

Garrett countians don't raise much stir about zero weather but zero weather with wind—well, that's different. According to R. E. Weber, at the government station south of town there have been four or five times only within the past several years that the county had below zero weather with a wind.

Temperatures since Sunday: Sunday six below, Monday 10 below, Tuesday nine below, Wednesday four above, Thursday 15 below. It was clear and warm today.

Mrs. Fike Dies

Mrs. Delilah Fike, wife of Washington Fike, died at her home near Aurora, W. Va., in Preston county, Tuesday February 16, following an illness of a little over four years. Most of this time she was confined to her bed. She was the mother of Elden R. Fike, Oakland.

Mrs. Fike was born at Sang Run, this county, November 3, 1869, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Johnson. On March 24, 1889 she united in marriage with Washington Fike, and to this union were born six children, one of whom (Mrs. Clara Selders) preceded her in death eight years ago.

Surviving are her husband, five children, Otis Fike, of Morgantown, W. Va.; Elden R. Fike, of Oakland; King Fike, of Dahart, Texas; Esta and Mary Fike, of Oakland; one brother, Amaziiah Johnson, of Eglon, W. Va., and a sister, Clara Nine, of Long Beach, Calif.; sixteen grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Gow Rites Held

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday morning at Frederick for Dr. Alexander Gow, Jr., prominent 39-year-old veterinarian, who died there last Saturday afternoon after an illness of two weeks due to pneumonia.

Dr. Gow's wife was formerly Roselle Bishoff, of Oakland, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Bishoff. Surviving are his widow and three children, Emma Louise, Roselle and Alexander Gow, 3rd, all at home; also his father, at Ransomville, N. Y.; and two sisters. Attending the services from here were Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Bishoff and G. Emerson Bishoff, brother of Mrs. Gow.

Flames Destroy
Keister Home
At Midlothian*Four Room Bungalow and
All Its Contents Are Destroyed

FROSTBURG, Feb. 19.—The four room frame bungalow of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Keister, Midlothian, together with all its contents, was destroyed by fire this afternoon, which was discovered by Mrs. Hannah Taylor, a neighbor, about 3 p. m., while Mrs. Keister had gone a short distance for water, leaving three small children in the house.

According to Mrs. Taylor, whose attention was attracted by the screams of the children in the yard, the fire originated in the kitchen, near the kitchen stove.

The Frostburg and Shaft Fire Departments responded to the alarm, but the blaze had made such rapid headway that it was impossible to save anything.

The house, facing the Midlothian road, was built five years ago and was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Keister and their eight young children.

Keister, a coal miner in the employ of the Georges Creek Coal Company, Lonaconing, who was at work when the fire started, arrived home at 4 p. m., he said the family lost everything except the clothing they were wearing. There was no insurance on the building or its contents.

Time for a Star-Spangled Party

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Food Editor

Uncle Sam has put no ban on friends or neighbors getting together these days for an old-fashioned food fest. A home-spun party fosters the neighborly spirit and is an excellent morale booster.

How about a combination supper on or near Washington's Birthday with a few patriotic decorations on the table? A combination party divides the work and expense, and the fact that everybody has a finger in the pie makes for informality.

If there are twelve or so in the group, INDIVIDUAL CHICKEN PIES make fine eating and they are easy to carry and serve. Make the chicken blend the day before.

Vanilla Cherry Tarts

One recipe prepared vanilla pudding, six baked tart shells, Marshmallow cherries.

Prepare vanilla pudding as directed on package. Cool. Fill tart shells and garnish with marshmallow cherries.

Cut up a fowl weighing about four pounds. Wash thoroughly, put in kettle and cover by two inches with water. Add one teaspoon salt and cover tightly. Slowly bring to the boiling point. Add four celery leaves and simmer the chicken until it is very tender—about two hours. Pour through a sieve to remove chicken from the stock. Cool stock and chicken. Chill chicken and remove meat from bones, cutting into about one inch pieces.

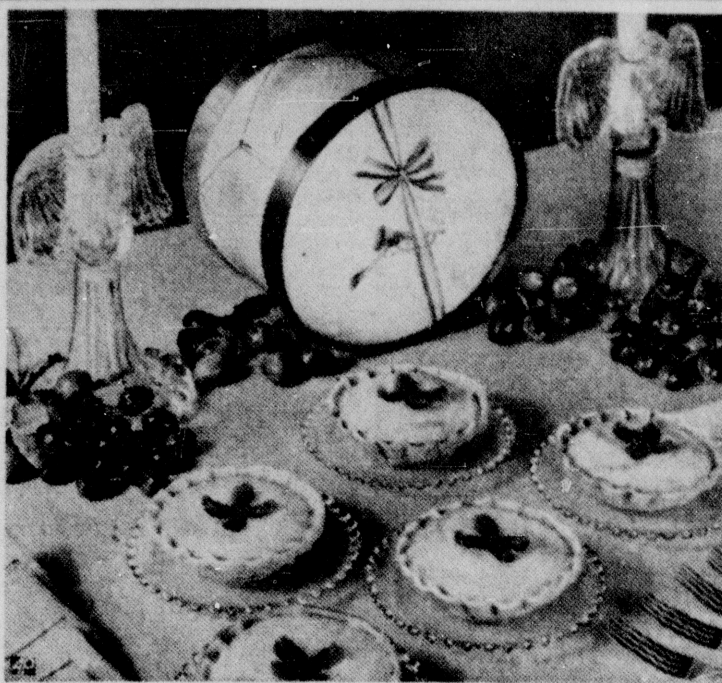

Chill the stock and remove the fat that comes to the top. Mix together six tablespoons chicken fat with one-half cup flour. Add one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-fourth teaspoon celery seed and two teaspoons minced parsley. Add three cups stock, one cup milk and cook slowly until thick and creamy. Stir frequently.

Add the diced chicken to the sauce and stir in one cup cooked peas, one-half cup diced celery and two tablespoons chopped pimientos (optional). Pour into baking dishes and cover the tops with rich biscuit dough cut out with doughnut cutter. Bake and insert tiny flags into the pies when served.

Another member of the party group can bring a large bowl of tossed green salad, jellied cabbage relish salad or regular old-fashioned cole slaw.

Hot rolls, corn sticks or cornbread can be baked at the dinner spot or carried from home well bundled in napkins and quickly reheated for the dinner.

CHERRY PIES are universal favorites for this meal. But doughnuts and baked apples or deep dish apple pie are worthy competitors. If you have strawberries on the canned fruit shelf, they can be added into delicious tarts with sugar cookie hatchets arranged on top just as the dessert is ready for serving.

VANILLA CHERRY TARTS: For Washington's Birthday

For a patriotic main dish calling for but two pounds of hamburger, ground chuck or top round, serve SPAGHETTI ROYALE. It is substantial and has a lot of appetite half teaspoon paprika. Blend thoroughly and add six cups tomatoes, one teaspoon sugar and one-half teaspoon powdered cloves. Simmer an hour. Stir frequently. To prevent scorching, set the pan over an asbestos mat. If the oven is going you can cook this blend in a covered casserole in a moderate oven for an hour. Stir several times with a fork.

Cook a pound of spaghetti in boiling salted water for ten minutes. Drain and rinse with boiling water. Keep hot in covered double boiler. Arrange spaghetti on heated platter and surround with the tomato blend. Sprinkle with one cup grated cheese. Pass crisp carrot strips and cubes of dill pickles.

Serve a tossed green salad with cubed avocados, or jellied fruit salad with this spaghetti diet. Sign off with cherry cobbler, cherry sherbet and hatchet shaped sugar cookies or cherry-up-side-down dessert.

Chilli Idea

It's "chilli" weather, so let's have some . . . whether it's made from beef or veal. For variation, cube the meat rather than grind it. Cut in one-half-inch cubes and brown with onion and green pepper. Add cooked kidney beans, seasonings and tomatoes and finish cooking.

Pork Shanks

Give pork shanks a new turn by braising. Simmer them in water to cover for about forty-five minutes, and remove skin. Brown in hot fat in a heavy kettle. Add one to two cups of water, cover and simmer for about two hours or until tender. Vegetables may be cooked alongside.

SUSAN SHERIDAN

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE
"YOU'RE NOT going to be an invalid, be desperately sick, are you?" Jake asked Kay.

"No. Really I'm not." She sighed a little with relief. "I just have to take a sort of sabbatical year."

"What shall we do? Where can we go. Honey, it's going to be awful for you. I'm used to hobnobbing, batting around, considering one room a home." He looked at her hand. It was white, the skin was flawless, the nails freshly manicured. "You have such patrician little hands. I've never seen you use them for anything but signing a check or paying a taxi."

"Pretty useless accomplishments. I think it's going to be fun to harden them, to make them really serve some purpose."

"You may think so now. But you'll hate it. How hard will we be? We never talk about money. To tell the truth, I don't ever even think about it." He gave her a charged smile.

"We'll be quite hard up. The only money I have saved is a few thousand dollars, enough to buy us a little place. We'll have to depend on your income for our living expenses."

She let her fingers dabble in the brook. The sound of the water as it trickled over the stones was soothing. Out here, where it was so still, so peaceful, she felt anything was possible. She wished, though, that she knew just what was going on in Jake's mind. He was thinking hard.

"If you have a few thousand dollars, why wouldn't that tide us over the year, until you are well enough to work again?" he asked. "Buying a place is a terribly final sort of act. I've always hated the idea of being loaded down with possessions. And, darling, we're city folk. We'd better try the country first, see if we can stand it, before we go buying any house."

Kay really felt sorry for him. If she had thought there was any chance of getting him really to work and steady down in New York, she would have given in. But if Jake was to dig in seriously, he'd have to get away from his friends and all the distractions that intrigued him so much.

"If we live on that money, all our capital would be gone in a year. Then if I weren't able to work, if we decided maybe we'd like to have a baby—"

He broke in there. "Oh, Lord, have a heart. I'm just not cut out to be a father. I guess my paternal instincts are dormant. Babies just seem like squealing little animals to me." He grinned in dismay.

"They'd never mentioned having children; it had been tacitly assumed that there'd never be any."

"It was just a suggestion. I'll forget it. I haven't any two much affection for them myself," she agreed.

"But Jake, we can't use up what little capital we have. We can't tell what might happen. There isn't enough money to last."

est would be so small it would be useless. But if we buy a house, own land, then we'll save rent and we'll still have our money. We don't have to stay in the country forever. Just until I'm all right. Then town."

Kay was pleading earnestly. She even had herself convinced now that she wasn't well enough to keep on working. Her eyes were serious and she watched Jake's face, tried to detect his emotions. She hadn't anticipated a flat refusal. Her scheme might fail now, her hopes for Jake die still-born.

"Isn't there someone you could live with for this year, some rich old uncle or wealthy cousin?" he asked.

She turned her head away quickly, hoping to hide the tears that suddenly filled her eyes. But she wasn't quite swift enough.

"Oh, darling, I didn't mean that the way it sounds." He buried his head in her lap. "I'd go crazy without you. But it's just that all this is so new it scares me a little. I'm afraid for you, afraid for myself," he admitted.

"You've had an exciting life, full of action, stimulation, success. My life's been exciting, too. That is, it has been for me. I've been free to travel. I've known all kinds of people. I've been alone a good deal, but that's because I wanted to be. There have always been people when I wanted them."

She ran her fingers through his hair, let him talk himself out.

"It wouldn't be as though we never could see anyone," she said. "We could get to town often. And Jake, it would be a marvelous opportunity for you to work."

"No, I know that." She didn't remind him of how little work he'd done all winter. "I just thought it would be something to do to keep you from getting too bored with me."

She turned his face toward her, smiled and then leaned down and kissed his cheek. "He's not very flattering," she thought. "But at least he's being honest, and it's an incredibly difficult situation for him to face. I guess it's the first time in his life that he has to do something that he doesn't want to do. It takes some schooling to be unselfish with good grace."

"Kiss me again," he said. "You must think I'm a heel. All I've done is fuss about me." She kissed him, long this time.

"No, I don't think you're a heel. I think you've been grand. It's not so hard for me, because I have no choice. But it's something else again for you. If you can't face the thought, I'll go alone. You can stay in town and come up week-ends. I could borrow enough money to live on for a year—maybe I could even earn some putting up preserves or something." She was going to ridicule him.

He burst out laughing. "Next thing you'll suggest slaughtering hogs. No, honey, we might as well face the sentence together." He stood up, stretched, kicked an old log. "I can't say I fancy it. But I guess we can stand a year of anything."

Walking back to the Inn, Kay decided that Jake had really taken it all in a more sensible spirit than she had thought he would. It amused and did not surprise her that there was another alternative that hadn't even occurred to him. And that was that he might earn enough money to support her. Just as well. Now all she had to do was ease him into steady practice, lessons, long hours of work.

They didn't talk much more about the move. That afternoon Jake got restless. "If we're going to spend a year in the country, we'll have enough without staying here now," he said. "Let's go to Boston."

So they made a wild dash, bounding and joggling along in Jenny, and got to Boston in time for dinner. Jake called up some old friends and the reunion celebration lasted until 5 o'clock in the morning.

There was another party on Sunday, and they didn't get started for New York until late in the evening. That meant Jake had to drive all night, with Kay curled up on the front seat trying to catch a little sleep. She barely had time to take a shower and change her clothes before she left for the store.

"Are you exhausted?" Jake asked, as he sat with her while she hastily drank a cup of coffee.

"Oh, no. I feel fine," she said with a wry smile.

"It was fun though, wasn't it?" Jake had given himself wholeheartedly over to the festivities. And it had been fun. She and Jake hadn't had a spree like that for months.

"Yes, it was. But I'll probably have to stick pins in myself to keep awake."

"Why don't you stay home? We'll sleep until this afternoon, then dig up Tony and Het and all have dinner, go somewhere and dance," he urged.

"I can't do that. I've got too much work to do. And one day's hookey is enough." She got up from the table, walked into the hall, started to put on her hat. Jake followed her, leaned indolently against the doorway.

"Anyway," Kay went on, "I want to tell David the news today. I'll try and get away early." She could hardly keep her eyes open.

"How about tonight? Shall I fix something up?"

"Not for me. I'll be in bed by 9 o'clock." She wished longingly that it was that time already.

"Do you mind if I go out?"

"Of course not. Go ahead." He was obviously going to pack all the fun he could into the next few weeks. Kay didn't blame him.

David was flabbergasted when he heard the news.

Dix Has a Record Of 200 Starring Movies

Richard Dix, who heads the big cast in Universal's new action melodrama, "Eyes of the Underworld," coming Monday to the Liberty theater, became a full-fledged star in 1921. He has retained his position in the cinematic firmament ever since—an achievement unprecedented in motion picture history.

Born in St. Paul, Minn., Dix was educated at Minnesota and Northwestern universities.

During his more than two decades on the silver screen, he has had top billing in some 200 productions. Playing in support of Dix in

"Eyes of the Underworld" are such capable thespians as Wendy Barrie, Don Porter, Billy Lee, Lloyd Corrigan and Lon Chaney.

Former Reporter Stars In "Shadow of a Doubt"

A newspaper man went to Hollywood to get away from writing. He is Joseph Cotton formerly a notable actor with Orson Welles's Mercury theater group in New York and now an important screen player. With Hollywood studios abounding in former newspaper reporters, editors and critics engaged in turning out the film city's scripts and scenarios, Cotton is one Fourth Estater in a thousand. He quit gathering news to act, not to do more writing. His latest role is opposite Teresa Wright in Alfred Hitchcock's new Universal thriller, "Shadow of a Doubt" now at the Strand theater.

Miss Crawford Stars In "Reunion in France"

Joan Crawford's latest starring production, M. G. M.'s "Reunion in France," comes to the Embassy theater tomorrow.

To follow Miss Crawford's outstanding successes in "A Woman's Face" and "When Ladies Meet," the studios have chosen a sensational wartime story for her current production. Paris, following its fall in 1940, with the Nazi hordes filling the city, is the locale and background. Miss Crawford's role is that of a rich and socially prominent Parisienne who loses her wealth to the invaders and who risks her life and liberty in underground work.

Her leading men in the production are Philip Dorn, who scored so convincingly in "Random Harvest,"

Naval Officer Plays Himself in "Commandos"

When Maryland theater audiences, watching "Commandos Strike at Dawn," Columbia drama starring Alfred Hitchcock's "Shadow of a Doubt" features Wallace Ford (L) and Macdonald Carey. Teresa Wright is co-starred with Joseph Cotton in the Universal picture now at the Strand theater.

Paul Muni, see a "Captain Godfrey," commanding the grim, gray-painted warship used in the picture, they are seeing Captain V. S. Godfrey, Royal Canadian Navy, commander in real life of that ship. Throughout the dramatic new film, made on location near Victoria, B. C. with the aid of the Canadian Army, Navy and Air Forces, Columbia Producer Lester Cowan, wherever possible, used real characters to portray the characters in the story and used their real names whenever the script called for them to be addressed or mentioned.

Garden Presents New Western Star

A new Western star, rapidly gaining popularity, is featured in "Sundown Jim," now at the Garden

theater. His name is John Kimbrough, and already he has acquired a sizeable group of fans. An action packed drama of the old West, "Sundown Jim" has a large cast that includes Virginia Gilmore and Arleen Whelan.

The co-feature at the Garden is a fast, thrilling, heart-warming action melodrama, "Escape from Crime," Richard Travis and Julie Bishop are starred.

Another chapter of "Overland Mail" rounds out the Garden program.

Central Tigers Hope To Shatter LaSalle Victory Streak Tonight

Lonaconing Floor Men Haven't Lost Game On Home Court

The LaSalle High Explorers, who haven't lost a game yet this season and who bowed only to an Alumni combination during the 1941-42 campaign, hope to extend their victory string and at the same time hand Coach Mel "Newt" Henry's Central High Tigers their first setback on their home court when the teams clash tonight at 9:15 at Lonaconing.

The contest, holding the feature spot on this week's district scholastic basketball program, will be handled by Van Roby and Cliff Fearer. There will be no preliminary game. The Explorers, because of their more impressive record and their decisive 41-17 triumph over the Tigers in the first meeting here in December, will be slight favorites. However, the Central players, Coach Henry and Tiger followers are confident that the Orange and Black will turn the tables on LaSalle's undefeated combination.

LaSalle's Third Game of Week
The Explorers, who will be playing their third game of the week, registered their nineteenth and twentieth straight triumphs when they turned back Barton Wednesday and Fort Ashby Thursday.

With George Geatz, city scoring champion last season and who is far ahead in the current point race, showing the way, LaSalle has defeated Piedmont twice, Beall twice, Central, Fort Hill, Barton twice, Fort Ashby twice, Davis, Ridgeley twice, Bedford Navy, Romney twice, Probstburg State College Jayvees, Allegany and Keyser. Central, in sixteen starts this season, has lost only to LaSalle, Allegany and Beall. In return clashes with Allegany and Beall, both of which were played at Lonaconing, the Tigers avenged both previous setbacks and they hope to continue the precedent tonight.

Piedmont Plays Keyser
The Centralites defeated Oakland twice, Alumni, Fort Hill twice, Keyser, Barton twice, Piedmont twice, Bruce, Allegany and Beall. Big John Muster, center, is the Tigers' scoring ace and he and LaSalle's Geatz are expected to figure in an individual scoring duel.

Only one other game is on tap in the district tonight. Piedmont and Keyser, two Mineral county rivals who have been traditional court foes for a long time, will clash in a return tussle at Keyser with the home team seeking to repeat an earlier 25-23 decision over Coach "Huck" Miers's combination.

Bay Meadows Meet Will Start Today

Horse and Buggy Era Revived To Cope With War Restrictions

SAN MATEO, Calif., Feb. 19 (AP)—Bay Meadows turns back the horse racing calendar forty years or so tomorrow in an effort to conduct a twenty-five-day or more meeting without such auxiliaries as auto, bus and train transportation.

The horse and buggy era is being revived, literally, to cope with war time restrictions. Every type of horse-drawn vehicle will be used to haul patrons from the terminus of the San Francisco-San Mateo interurban street car to the track, slightly more than a mile and a half away.

Rubber Administrator W. M. Jeffers frowned on the use of automobiles to reach the track. Consequently, all the parking areas will be closed. Trains running past the front door will not stop at the track's station. The railroad, in fact, ran newspaper advertisements asking horse players not to use its facilities.

The State Racing Board, through Chairman Jerry Giesler telegraphed William Soule, city manager of San Mateo, suggesting that autos, aside from those owned locally, be prohibited from parking within a mile of the track.

Soule agreed to post warning signs. He failed to specify how the edict would be enforced. Capt. R. S. Cassell said the regulation had no legal status on the state highways.

Giesler himself visited the track today. He rode the street car from San Francisco, like the rest of the outside trade will be supposed to do, and walked the nearly two miles to the racing strip.

He immediately rescinded some of his previous restrictions by informing horsemen they would be permitted to bring their cars into the stable area for daily parking. The autos must be driven in before 8 a. m. and leave either before noon or remain until 5:30 p. m.

Navy Cagers Oppose Duke's Blue Devils
ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 19 (AP)—Duke University's Blue Devils, Southern Conference champions, will invade Annapolis tomorrow afternoon to meet Navy's cagers.

The Blue Devils have won most of their games this year, while the Navy has won four and lost six.

The Middies, in ten games to date have defeated Dickinson, Rutgers, Temple, and the University of Virginia. Their losses were to Gettysburg, Columbia, Maryland, University of Pennsylvania, Penn State, and West Virginia University.

Fred Crosby, Baltimore, Reappointed Maryland Softball Commissioner

CHICAGO, Feb. 19 (AP)—Fred Crosby, of the Baltimore Recreation Department, was reappointed Maryland softball commissioner today by President Raymond Johnson of the Amateur Softball Association of America.

Johnson said that under association rules, Crosby is the organization's field man on the board of the Maryland Amateur Softball Association, selects tournament sites, approves dates, issues sanctions and travel permits.

"Since we have received the 'go' signal from Paul V. McNutt, director of the Office of Defense Health and Welfare, the A.S.A. of A. and its affiliated groups will bend every effort to keep morale on the high pinnacle so necessary to Americans during these war times," he added.

"Y" Church Loop Coaches Select All-Star Teams

Five Clubs Represented on First Quint --- Two Unanimous Choices

Five of the ten teams in the Central Y. M. C. A. Church Basketball League are represented on the All-Star outfit as selected by coaches of the clubs and announced last night by Van Roby, physical director at the "Y".

A first and a second team were chosen with St. Paul's, eliminated in the preliminary playoff last Saturday, dominating the six-man No. 2 combination with three players. The teams follow:

FIRST TEAM
Harry Hart, F., Centre Street
Gene Shaw, F., First Methodist
James Fradiska, C., St. Luke's
William Stanley G., Presbyterian
John Diamond G., Episcopal

SECOND TEAM
William Earle, F., St. Paul's
Glenn Whitman, F., St. Paul's
Ken Cabbage, C., St. Paul's
Robert Price, C., Presbyterian
William Bartlett, C., St. Luke's
James Twigg, G., Episcopal

Honorable Mention—Thomas Hager, St. Paul's; James Radcliffe and Bruce Anderson, Centre Street; Donald Screen, Grace Methodist; Richard Clower, First Baptist, and Eugene Bailey, St. John's.

Hart and Fradiska were unanimous selections while Shaw polled the third highest number of votes. The first team includes the three top scorers in the loop—Shaw, who led the list; Hart, who was second, and Fradiska, who had the highest average per game.

Six players were given places on the second team due to a tie for center between Cabbage and Price.

Cardinal System Helps Uncle Sam

Breadon Says 265 Players from Organization Now in Service

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 19 (AP)—A total of 265 players from the Cardinal organization now are in military service, President Sam Breadon said today, bearing out his statement that lack of manpower was the chief difficulty facing the world champions' farm system.

Of the men in uniform, 122 have gone into the armed forces since the close of the 1942 season, fifty-five of them since early December. A conference of Cardinal officials yesterday disclosed that many others are in the I-A category or face reclassification in the immediate future. In addition, fifteen players have volunteered and are awaiting call to active duty.

The manpower situation confirmed Breadon in his decision to operate only six minor league clubs this year—Rochester, Columbus and Sacramento, the Double A members of the Cardinal chain; Lynchburg, Va., Allentown, Pa., and a team in the Pony League.

Among the war casualties, some unexpected action is taken by the Texas League at a meeting Feb. 24 will be Houston, a Cardinal farm since 1922. Breadon said if the Texas circuit folded, Houston's players would be distributed among the three Double A clubs and Lynchburg, which has taken over the franchise of Asheville, N. C., in the Class B Piedmont League.

Broaca To Hurl

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 19 (AP)—Johnny Broaca, ex-pitcher for the New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians, is in the army now—but that's not going to end his baseball career, he asserts.

"Plenty of victories left in the old flipper," he told an interviewer. "The army is great, gets you in shape and keeps you in shape. I could go the route any time."

Broaca, 33, and out of organized baseball two seasons, was inducted a month ago. Sundays he'll pitch for the Fort Rosecrans team.

William D. Cox Expected To Take Over Phils Today

New York Sportsman Says "I'm Lucky One;" Starts Making Plans

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19 (AP)—Official announcement that William D. Cox, 33-year-old New York sportsman, has purchased the National League Phils is expected to be made here tomorrow.

Following a statement by Cox that "I'm the lucky one," a responsible source disclosed today that a meeting has been tentatively scheduled for noon (EWT) at which Ford Frick, president of the National League, is to turn over the franchise to the former New York University and Yale University baseball player.

It was emphasized the time of the meeting was subject to last-minute change.

Nugent's Reign Ended
The ten-year reign of Gerry Nugent as owner of the Phils ended yesterday when the league purchased 4,600 of the club's 5,000 outstanding shares of stock at a reported $10 per share.

Frick announced after the purchase that the league had told a certain group that the "club is yours," adding that the "deal will be closed within the next seven days, perhaps sooner."

Frick declared in New York that "I do not care to comment on Mr. Cox's statement. I am not denying it. I just have nothing to say till the bargain is sealed. As soon as ready I expect the purchasers to sign it and turn over the money. It won't be ready today, but the whole thing should be completed within a few days. All details have been agreed upon."

Cox Will Be President
Making his remarks "contingent on my being the new owner," Cox declared "I'm the lucky one but the club still isn't signed, sealed and delivered to me. I'll be president of the club and I'll be with the club from the first day of training camp and as often as I can during the season. I might even put on a uniform and work out with the club."

Cox said ten persons were associated with him, but added that "Bert (Captain G. Herbert) Walker has retired." Walker is a captain in the army air force at Dayton, O. "Wear (Navy Lt. W. Potter Wear, of Philadelphia) is still with us," Cox added. "But one or two will never be known to the outside world. They prefer to be unidentified."

Piedmont Again Bests Ridgeley

Miersmen Remain in Mineral County Title Race by Winning, 36-23

PIEDMONT, W. Va., Feb. 19.—Coach "Huck" Miers's Piedmont high basketball team remained in the running for the Mineral county championship by defeating the Ridgeley High Blackhawks, 36-23, in a Potomac Valley Conference scrap here tonight.

Piedmont holds second place in the four-school county series behind Keyser, which hasn't lost a game to a Mineral rival. Tomorrow night, Piedmont plays at Keyser in a return game and can assure itself of at least a tie by winning.

In tonight's clash, Piedmont led 8-5 at the quarter, 20-8 at the half and 28-20 at the close of the third quarter. The victory enabled the Miersmen to sweep the home-and-home series with the Blackhawks.

Guard Alex Ambrose, of Piedmont, turned in his best game of the season. He gathered fourteen points on seven baskets. "Wig" Pratt, forward, gathered thirteen tallies for the winners. For Ridgeley, Les Whitacre was the top scorer with four field goals. The lineups:

Sewanee Had the Answer

You may not know much about Sewanee, also known as the University of the South. Numerically it is a small dot, located on the top of a Tennessee mountain. With an attendance that averages from 100 to 150 students, Sewanee still has a record for scholarship, military work and a great football tradition.

Over forty years ago, with a team coached by Herman Suter of Princeton, Sewanee set an all-time football record.

With a squad of only fourteen men, Sewanee traveled over 5,000 miles to play and win six games in seven days.

Her opponents were such teams as Texas, Texas A. and M., Tulane, L. S. U. and Auburn, as I recall the list.

They were all tough competitors. I still recall from this team such names as Rex Kilpatrick, brother of General Reid Kilpatrick, Kirby-Smith, Ditty Seibels and Ormond Simpkins.

No other football team in history ever approached this record mop-up in a week's time.

It was this football tradition, built up by other great teams from a student list that rarely reached 130 men, that gave Sewanee the answer to what war football means.

Alexander Tells about It.
Bill Alexander, of Georgia Tech, told me the story recently.

"It is a story that should be printed," Bill said. "For it means the spirit of football."

"Last fall, with less than one hundred students, with a hard scholastic and military schedule to follow, Sewanee had no football schedule for the first time in over fifty years. But fourteen or fifteen players who loved the game got together and began practicing. They had no coach. They had no game to play. They never even had a scrub team to play against. But they kept at it. They finally wired me to send up a team from Georgia Tech to their home on the mountain."

"The best I could do with our heavy schedule was to send our freshman team. It was a good freshman outfit too, well trained and coached. They had a great 7-7 battle in the clouds and fogs that frequently obscure the playing field. But my boys told me that untrained, uncoached Sewanee team fought like tigers. All Sewanee had was a football and a few old uniforms."

Dodds, Mitchell And Dixon Clash In Boxer Mile

Third Clash of Track Stars Will Feature N.Y.A.C. Games

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP)—There'll be more running and jumping than you can shake a stick at (if anybody other than the pole vaulters is interested in shaking a stick) in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night when the New York Athletic Club puts on its annual indoor track meet combined with the Metropolitan Intercollegiate.

But as usual, the attention of the fans will be concentrated upon the season's third clash of the top millers, Gilbert Dodds, Earl Mitchell and Frank Dixon, in the Boxer mile; Greg Rice's bid for his fifty-ninth consecutive victory in the Tossaint two-mile and Hugh Thors's bid for his third and final cup victory of the season in the Buermeyer 500.

Fourth of the traditional cup races is the Matt Halpin half mile with a field that includes Manhattan's Fred Sicking, seeking his fourth triumph of the season, and the veteran Gene Venzke, starting at the shorter distance after placing third or better in thirteen straight Boxer miles.

By taking in the Metropolitan meet, left homeless when the army occupied the Bronx Coliseum, the N.Y.A.C. added nine good events to its regular program. The top "Met" performers are the same boys who ordinarily would compete in the invitation events.

Two meet records were broken yesterday as four field events were staged outdoors and Columbia's Bill Vessie, favorite to win the invitation high jump tomorrow, set one of them with a six-foot, five-inch leap. New York University took the lead in team scoring with twenty-eight points to Columbia's eighteen.

Dodds Is Man To Beat
Although Dodds hasn't won during the indoor season, he's still considered the man to beat in the mile, due to his ability to cut out a killing pace. Mitchell out-sprinted him to win the Wanamaker mile at the Millrose meet here in 4:08.6 and in the Boston A. mile he was third as Dixon won in 4:11.4. Completing the field are Don Burnham of Dartmouth and Jim Rafferty of the New York A. C. runner-up last year to Leslie MacIntyre.

Ollie Hunter of Notre Dame is expected to chase Rice, who has won the Tossaint two-mile the past three years, across the finish line. George De George, inducted into the army yesterday, is a doubtful starter. Short's principal rival in the 500 is likely to be Jimmy Herbert, who can win the Buermeyer trophy outright by taking this race.

Boys Is Injured
Robert L. Bible, 6, of Oldtown suffered a small puncture wound of the head yesterday when he fell. After receiving treatment at Memorial hospital he was taken home.

forms—plus unbreakable spirit and a love of the game.

An Example
"If little Sewanee, hidden away on a mountain, without a schedule or a coach, can carry on football against such heavy odds, why should other colleges and universities quit?"

"Here is an example that every college should follow. I don't believe most of the people of this country know what football means to the youth of the country. I'll go on beyond the physical side, which is important, to the matter of spirit and tradition from the competitive angle."

"I understand that for the duration of the war there should be no big spectator engagements, especially on the intersectional side. But we need football, just as the British use it and the Russians use it before crowds that range from 30,000 to 50,000 people."

"I think you'll find that if certain colleges have neither a schedule nor a coach left, they will have enough left around to organize some sort of a football team. They will kick, block, tackle and run through signals. Then they will play around, as Sewanee did, to find some opponent, or perhaps two or three opponents, they can meet on the field."

"We are not interested in any national championships now. But we must be interested in keeping the old game going. Certainly we need more football in our high schools. It is by all odds the most important sport these schools can follow. The high schools alone can carry on schedules worth public interest, just as Texas does. But most of the colleges will still have enough left to keep football in motion, to keep it alive. Sewanee has proved that."

Davis High Cops Tucker Honors As Thomas Bows
Parsons Limits Sudermen to Two Baskets in Winning 26-12

PARSONS, W. Va., Feb. 19.—The Parsons High Panthers, who had already lost twice this season to Coach Emil Suder's Thomas high courtmen, squared accounts with the Sudermen and at the same time handed the Davis High Wildcats the Tucker county scholastic championship by scoring a one-sided 26-12 victory over Thomas here tonight.

Thomas, which needed a triumph to tie the Wildcats for county honors, could muster only two field goals with John Mann getting them both. Mann, after caging a free throw for Thomas's only point in the opening half, scored the first doubleheader in the second period and then came through in the closing chapter for the other field.

The final series standing shows Davis with five wins and three losses, Thomas with four triumphs and four setbacks and Parsons with three victories and five reverses.

Parsons, with Wallace Bennett leading the assault with fifteen points, led 5-1 at the quarter, 9-4 at the half and 14-6 at the end of three quarters. In the preliminary, the Parsons Reserves topped the Thomas Reserves, 18-16. The lineups:

Fort Hill Routs Bruce Hoopsters

In WMI Contest Cueva Scores All Three of Westernport Team's Field Goals

WESTERNPORT, Feb. 19.—Fort Hill's Sentinels, of Cumberland, handed Coach "Chip" Grindle's Bruce high hoopsters their eighteenth consecutive setback of the season here tonight to tie the Beall High Mountaineers, of Probstburg, for third place in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League.

The score was 50 to 13.

The Sentinels limited Bruce to three field goals. All of the locals' doubleheaders were caged by Cueva, who made one in the second period and two in the third. Bruce trailed 10-2 at the quarter with fouls by Cueva and Foster accounting for the losers' points.

The figures were 29-6 at the half and 44-11 at the third-period whistle. The thirteen points registered by Bruce is the lowest team total of the season in WMI skirmishing.

Every Fort Hill player except O'Brien "Obie" Calhoun scored two or more points with Fred Davis leading the parade with seventeen and Captain Wally Troutman following with twelve. Cueva made all but four of Bruce's counters. The lineups:

SOME PLAYS CLEAR-CUT MANY A FINISHING play of one kind or another depends for its success on what might be called probable card reading. That is, the chances are that the missing cards, on which its effectiveness is based, are very likely to be in a certain position. On other occasions, the reading is so clear-cut that there is practically no chance at all of your play not operating successfully.

West naturally expected to profit by that 3-Diamond bid, or he would not have made it. But its effect was to simplify the bidding of the slam by his opponents, and then make South careful to see that he played it successfully.

After the diamond K was led, South would have been pretty simple if he had not read the situation correctly. First of all, West's bid had made it a virtual certainty he had the club K and that finesse was marked as a loser. Then the diamond K lead placed the Q in his hand.

Anchoring to those two facts, plus the likelihood of West having the heart K for his high interrupting bid, South won the lead with the diamond A, came to his own hand with the spade Q, finessed the heart J, dropped the K with the A, took two more high spades, discarding the club 8 from his own hand, ruffed the fourth spade and then led the diamond J to West's marked Q. The poor defender could do nothing but return a club into the A-Q, or a diamond, on which the club Q could be discarded while dummy trumped.

Your Week-End Lesson

If you have an evenly distributed hand so strong you feel sure your side can make game, even though your partner's hand be a blank, what action do you take over an opponent's opening suit bid if your side is vulnerable and they are not? What action if they are vulnerable and you are not? Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Allegany County Is Awarded Salvage Pennant by WPB

100 Pounds of Scrap per Capita Was Collected Here in October

Allegany county has been awarded a salvage pennant by the War Production Board for its achievement of collecting 100 pounds of scrap metal per capita during the October salvage drive, Porter D. Collins, assistant chairman of the Allegany County General Salvage Committee, announced last night.

Announcement of the award to the county was made following a meeting at the home of W. Donald Smith, chairman of the scrap salvage committee, at which plans were made for a second tin can collection in Cumberland and LaVale on Friday and Saturday, March 6 and 7.

Notified by State Chairman Collins was notified of the award by H. Findlay French, chairman of the Maryland State Salvage Committee, who said Allegany county received the pennant from the General Salvage Branch of the WPB.

Plans are being made for presentation of the pennant to county officials, and a committee member said last night that it is the hope of the committee that the pennant can be displayed for a short time in each of the communities of the county.

During the October campaign for city, rural and industrial scrap, Allegany county collected approximately 8,500,000 pounds of scrap metal for the nation's war effort.

To Follow Original Schedule The tin can collection to be held in March will follow the same schedule used in the initial collection here on Jan. 21 and 22.

On March 5, cans will be picked up in the section of the city north of Baltimore and Greene streets and Baltimore avenue.

The following day cans will be collected in the section south of Baltimore and Greene streets and Baltimore avenue.

Committee members last night emphasized particularly that cans will be collected in The Dingle on March 5 with the northern section of the city and not on Saturday.

Members of the general salvage committee in the county who were in charge of the October drive are:

Porter D. Collins, John R. Wilkinson, Ralph M. McHenry, Miss Maude Bean, John H. Carscaden, Leo T. Downey, B. J. Lyons, W. Donald Smith, of Cumberland; Ralph M. Race, Froberg; Patrick A. Fannon, M. L. Savage; Lloyd Durs, Lonaconing; and Gilbert C. Cooling, Barton.

Cement Company Leases Property To Remove Sand and Limestone

A lease was filed for record in the office of Robert Jackson, clerk of court yesterday, between Sand and Stone Properties of Western Maryland, Incorporated and the Cumberland Cement and Supply Company.

Covering a period of fifteen years, the lease gives the Cement company the right to remove limestone, sand, sandstone, and building stone, from various properties located near the city.

Royalties are fixed at six cents per ton for limestone and ten cents per ton for all lime made; with a minimum of $500 a year; seven cents per ton for sand with a graduated scale for all over 50,000 tons, which brings the rate down to three cents per ton for all over 80,000 tons and six cents per ton for sand stone and building stone with a minimum of $1,000 a year.

The lease was signed by W. P. Sherman, president of the Sand and Stone company and by George K. Steiner, president of the Cement company.

Taxpayers Flock To Post Office To File Returns

Long lines of people stood in the third floor hallway yesterday at the post office awaiting their turn to file federal income tax papers. A recent warning by Richard J. Stakem, internal revenue collector here, that returns must be filed before March 15 regardless of what Congress does with pending tax legislation has accelerated business.

With local industrial plants paying Tuesday and Thursday this week a large number of persons filed their tax returns and most paid the required one-fourth down payment.

Will of R. C. Wilson Admitted to Probate

The will of Robert Cresap Wilson who died February 14, at his home near Rawlings, was admitted to probate yesterday in orphans court here.

Dated February 15, 1928, the will names his widow, Allie Porter Wilson and a daughter, Lillie Elode Shaffer as executrices. Half of all his property real and personal is bequeathed to his widow and the other half is divided equally among nine children, James M., Robert E., Ralph S., Guy W., Harriett C., Mary King and Emily Porter Wilson and Lillie Elode Shaffer and Pauline Grace Wallis.

Witnesses to the document were Gerard Everstine, George W. Legge and Thomas Lohr Richards.

WINS SECOND MEDAL—Staff Sgt. John F. Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Long of Wiley Ford, W. Va., is shown here being awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross by Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Bristol, for "outstanding aerial achievement" in the Middle East. The inset shows Sgt. Long, after he received the award. Sgt. Long, only 21 years of age has had over 200 hours of combat flying against the Axis in the Middle East-Mediterranean theater. This is his second decoration. A short time ago, he received the Air Medal for exploits against the Axis. The Air Medal was presented by Brig. Gen. Patrick Timberlake, chief of the American Bomber command in the Middle East. Both decorations were awarded in Cairo, Egypt. Sgt. Long was formerly employed by the Cumberland Cement company here and later became a member of the CCC. Prior to enlisting in the air corps a week after Pearl Harbor, he was employed in the forestry service of West Virginia. He has been abroad on combat duty for seven months. Sgt. Long is a nephew of Miss Mary A. Goodrich, 104 Washington street.

Grace Methodist Church Will Honor Men in Service

Service Flag with Fifty-three Stars Will Be Dedicated

A service flag bearing stars representing fifty-three members of Grace Methodist church or Sunday school who are in the armed forces will be dedicated at a special service at the church Sunday morning.

Pastor To Speak

Presentation of the new flag to the congregation will be made by Vivan G. Mahaney, a member of the committee in charge. The flag will be kept in the sanctuary. George Dayton, Narrows Park, a member of the church who leaves Thursday for induction into the army, will read the Scripture selection. The Rev. Charles M. LeFev, pastor of the church, will preach on "What We Owe to Our Servicemen." His sermon will follow dedication of the flag in which the entire congregation will participate.

One member of the church who will be represented on the flag by a star is Edwin Arthur, who received an honorable discharge from the army after being severely wounded in the Solomons.

Others represented on the flag are:

Members of the committee in charge are: C. H. Amoser, Vivan G. Mahaney, Mrs. W. Loren Banek and Mrs. R. A. Compton.

Former Local Man Is Correspondent With Pacific Fleet

A former Cumberlander, Frank Neill, who is a correspondent for International News Service with the Pacific fleet recounts his experiences in an article in the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity magazine. Neill joined the fraternity while a student at West Virginia University.

Neill attended Allegany high school and graduated from Martinsburg, W. Va., high school. He is a son of Mrs. Ellen Neill, Keyser, W. Va., and a brother of Robert O. Neill, this city. He obtained an interview from Prime Minister Winston Churchill in Miami, Fla. some months ago.

Dr. McColey Will Speak on Washington

Dr. Earl S. McColey will deliver an address on George Washington in the adult department of Centre street Methodist Sunday School, tomorrow morning at 9:45 o'clock. Music will include patriotic hymns and numbers by the Sunday school orchestra.

Red Cross Drive Groups Begin To Plan Solicitation

Special Gifts Section Meets Today; Women Organize Block System

Campaign headquarters for the 1943 Red Cross war fund campaign opened yesterday at 11 South Liberty street, with a meeting of the Women's section at 11 a. m.

Today, the Special Gifts section of which William C. Walsh and William A. Gunter, local attorneys are co-chairmen, will hold a luncheon meeting at the Elks' home, South Centre street at 12:15 o'clock. About twenty members of the special gifts committee are expected to attend.

At yesterday's meeting of the Women's section, of which Mrs. Edgar H. Vandegrift is chairman, divisions for various parts of the city were completed and teams for a house to house solicitation were completed. The house to house solicitation, according to Mrs. Lee W. Witherrup, chapter chairman, is scheduled to begin March 4.

Mrs. Witherrup also stated last night that Sunday, February 28 has been designated as National Red Cross Sunday, and ministers in all churches have been asked to talk on the work of the Red Cross or to mention the campaign in some manner.

It was also indicated at Red Cross headquarters that an organization of more than 200 persons will be formulated to conduct the campaign for funds here, in addition to almost as many more throughout the rest of the county. The county goal is $55,500. This campaign will be the only one conducted by the Red Cross this year and will replace the regular appeal for funds.

BARTON MAN HURT WHEN HIT BY BUS IN LONA CONING

Gibson Gardner, 50, Barton, remained in Miners hospital last night with injuries suffered at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning when he was knocked down by a C. and W. bus in Lonaconing.

Last night hospital attaches reported Gardner's condition as "pretty good" and said he was suffering a crushed right hand, facial injuries and shock.

The accident occurred at Douglas avenue and Main street, Lonaconing, where Gardner was standing when he was struck by the bus being backed by the driver, Argyle Cleon Edwards, Froberg. A front wheel of the bus ran over Gardner's hand.

Troopers M. Frank Beamer and Milton G. Hart who investigated the accident said last night they are continuing their inquiry.

Town Hall Meeting To View Way of Life

"The American Way of Life—What is it and is it in Danger?" will be the subject of the Town Meeting of the Air broadcast tomorrow afternoon, sponsored by the Club of Human Relations.

Speakers will include the Rev. Paul Henry Packard, pastor of the First Christian church and Morris Barton, local attorney. The moderator will be Harry Lannon.

Sister Edith Dies In Buffalo, N. Y.

Sister Edith Garrity, former housekeeper at Allegany hospital, died Monday in the Sisters of Charity hospital, Buffalo, N. Y., friends here learned yesterday.

Sister Edith came to Cumberland in 1911 when the Sisters of Charity took over operation of Allegany hospital and remained here for seven years. In 1928 she was transferred to Providence retreat, Buffalo.

Sister Edith was widely known in this section for her work among the poor and while she was cook and housekeeper at the hospital here fed hundreds of needy persons. She was a native of Racine, Wis.

JAMES GRIMM DIES

Funeral services for James Grimm, 59, Plintstone, who died Thursday in Memorial hospital, will be held Sunday in Stein's chapel with the Rev. George E. Baughman officiating.

A native of Virginia, Mr. Grimm was a former car foreman for the Western Maryland railway. He was a member of National Council, No. 167, Jr. O. U. A. M.

Surviving Mr. Grimm are his widow, Mrs. Mary Grimm, one daughter, Mrs. Elva Hirschberger, two brothers, Joseph and Millard Grimm, and a sister, Mrs. Eva Harper.

Interment will be in Fairview, Pa.

MRS. BARNETT DIES

Mrs. Carrie Blanche Eselman Barnett, 75, widow of George W. Barnett, 633 Maryland avenue, died at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning at her home.

Mrs. Barnett was a member of Centre street Methodist church and of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Letter Carriers' Association.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. R. K. Smith, Cumberland; three brothers, Hayes Eselman, Nowlesburg, W. Va.; Arthur C. Eselman, Bedford road; George H. Eselman, Davis, W. Va.; one sister, Mrs. Margaret Ruth Brady, Bedford road; two grandchildren, Pvt. Richard W. Smith, stationed in North Africa with the United States Army and Miss Ruth Smith, Cumberland.

Celanese Workers Must Not Drive Home to Lunch

OPA Rules Unnecessary Trips Will Be Classed as Pleasure Driving

Attention is being called to workers at the Celanese plant here, that they may lose their gasoline ration books, if they make extra or unnecessary trips to and from the plant.

The Office of Price Administration explains that workers driving to town for lunch are using gasoline and tires needlessly and should get their lunch at the plant or take it with them to save this extra ten or twelve miles of daily driving.

The company is also doing everything possible to facilitate the method of paying employees, so it will not be necessary for them to make an extra trip to the plant each payday. In some instances, notes from other workers are honored by the pay master, so checks can be delivered by fellow workers. Some workers are being paid on the job and an effort is being made to pay shifts leaving or coming to the plant.

A spokesman for the company said last night that the Celanese is desirous of co-operating with these war-time problems and has called the attention of the OPA ruling to employees, so they will not lose their gasoline coupon books by violating the unnecessary driving ban.

Churches Plan Dedication Week

Union Grove Methodist Circuit To Have Five Guest Preachers

The Union Grove Methodist church circuit will observe "Dedication Week" beginning February 22 and continuing through Friday, February 26. The observance is designed to raise $1,000,000 in Methodist churches throughout the nation.

The money will be used to finance spiritual services for the armed forces, religious work among families in industrial areas, relief for war refugees, said to chaplains of the army, navy and Marine Corps, expansion of missionary work in Latin America, evacuating and re-establishing foreign missions, and building of churches in defense areas.

Services will be held for the Union Grove Circuit as follows:

Monday, February 22, Pleasant Grove, the Rev. W. D. Pleasant, pastor of Grace Baptist church, speaker; Tuesday, February 23, Elliott Memorial, the Rev. Edward B. Lewis, pastor of Davis Memorial Methodist church, speaker; Wednesday, February 24, Centenary, the Rev. J. R. Wilson, pastor of the Paw Paw, W. Va., Methodist church, speaker; Thursday, February 25, Union, the Rev. Walter M. Michael, pastor of Centre Street Methodist church, speaker; Friday, February 26, Zion, the Rev. Charles M. LeFev, pastor of Grace Methodist church, speaker.

Pair Get Year Sentence On Morals Charge Heard In Juvenile Court Case

Melvin T. Uplinger, 32, of 17 Fifth street, accused of contributing to the delinquency of minor children was sentenced to serve one year in the house of correction yesterday in juvenile court. The same sentence was imposed on Mrs. Lillian Northcraft Hill, 13 Laing avenue, wife of a soldier. She was arraigned on the same charge.

Uplinger's wife, mother of a seven-month-old child, told police that she was "running around" with Mrs. Hill, who has a 15-year-old son. Lieut. James E. Van and Officers Edwin Lijah and L. A. Williams raided Mrs. Hill's apartment and arrested her last night.

Officers said Uplinger has a long police record and has served several jail terms on various charges. With his brother, Ralph Uplinger, and several other men, he broke out of the county jail, while awaiting trial on robbery charges, while William R. Harvey was sheriff. He was later captured and sent to prison. He was also in the county jail when a break was staged, while George E. Kemp was sheriff, but he was not among the prisoners who fled.

Warrington Is Held On Charge of Failing To Report To Board

Raymond Elza Warrington, 28, of Luke, Md., was arrested yesterday on a charge of failing to report for induction into the armed service last November. Howard P. Loughrey, deputy United States marshal, said that Warrington will be removed to a federal court in West Virginia for prosecution.

Warrington, who said he is a member of Jehovah's Witnesses and is ministered by the Mineral County Draft Board at Keyser, W. Va. When classified in 1-A he appealed on the ground he was a minister of the gospel but his appeal was denied. He refused to report for induction and the case was turned over to federal authorities. He is an employee of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

Magistrates Could Receive More Money Under Kimble Bill

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 19 (AP)—A bill introduced in the state Senate today would permit the boosting of trial magistrates' salaries in Allegany county above present levels.

The bill, introduced by Senator Robert B. Kimble (R-Allegany) would establish the present salaries as minimums, permitting the county commissioners and municipal authorities to raise salaries above present levels.

Present salaries, as prescribed by law, are $3,600 at Cumberland; $1,200 at Frostburg; and $800 at Westernport, Lonaconing, Mt. Savage, Midland and Barton. The Kimble bill would amend the law to provide that the magistrates receive "not less than" those amounts.

Chamber of Commerce Turns Matrimonial Bureau for 'Background'

Date bureaus, letter leagues and the like have been set up to help soldiers out during their spare time since the war began but here's a new angle in reverse.

This concerns a letter received at the chamber of commerce office yesterday morning from a Richmond, Va. girl seeking information about a certain soldier.

The contents of her letter and a telegram also received at the chamber offices today might place the chamber of commerce office in the category of a matrimonial bureau.

This is the letter received by Harold W. Smith, secretary of the chamber, from the Richmond girl who wants to check up on her future husband — if the information supplied by the chamber is satisfactory.

"We expect to get married after the war is over," the letter reads, "but I do not know anything about his parents, who they are, where they live, or if his home is in Cumberland. I want to know more about his background," the letter concludes.

The telegram read, "Please inform as to age limit of married couples" and Smith said he presumed the communication pertained to the legal age for marriage in the state.

Immediate answer was made to the wire, Smith said, and he added that an attempt will be made to secure the information desired by the Richmond girl who said she met the soldier in question a year ago and that he now is overseas.

Local Man Tells Of Bombing Nazi And Italian Bases

Capt. "Vic" Raphael Hom on Leave from Near East Aerial Fight

Captain E. Victor Raphael, son of Mrs. Eugene P. Raphael, 602 Washington street, has returned home on leave from the Near East aerial battle fronts where he piloted a four-motored Liberator bomber against numerous Axis objectives. Capt. Raphael, a former Times carrier, has been decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Silver Medal for his exploits against enemy targets.

"Vic", as he is better known by his friends, says the Flying Fortress are good planes but the Liberators are probably the best heavy bombers used today. "They fly faster, farther, and carry a bigger bomb load than the Forts," he said.

Guns on his planes shot down four Axis planes in an engagement over the harbor at Pylos, Greece, and they also had good results over Benghazi and Naples, Italy. Capt. Raphael related. The Naples raid was a complete surprise and excellent results were obtained by the precision bombing as practiced by American crews.

Rommel Lacks Gasoline Raphael told of Rommel's flight across Egypt, Libya and into Tunisia. "The lack of gasoline beat Rommel," he said. American and British planes bombed the harbor and supply dumps to seriously impede his plans, he added.

The advance of the British Eighth army after Rommel was so swift that United States and British planes landed on a field which was used the day before by Italian planes. "While we were there two Italian planes came in for a landing and were run off by ack-ack fire," Raphael said. "They did not know the Allies had taken over the field, he laughingly remarked.

Met Local Man in Africa Capt. Raphael said he met Wayne Sowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Sowers, 514 Greene street, on the Gold Coast of Africa. Sowers is a radio operator in the air force. Four or five other men of this section are in the air forces to which Raphael is attached but he could not remember their names off hand.

here by his wife, the former Miss Margaret Garcia, of Tampa, Fla. His brother, Edwin Raphael, a naval aviation cadet, is also home on leave. Capt. Raphael is awaiting orders from Washington, D. C. as to his next duty. He will be here for the next four or five days and may then be assigned as an instructor at a heavy bomber school command post.
